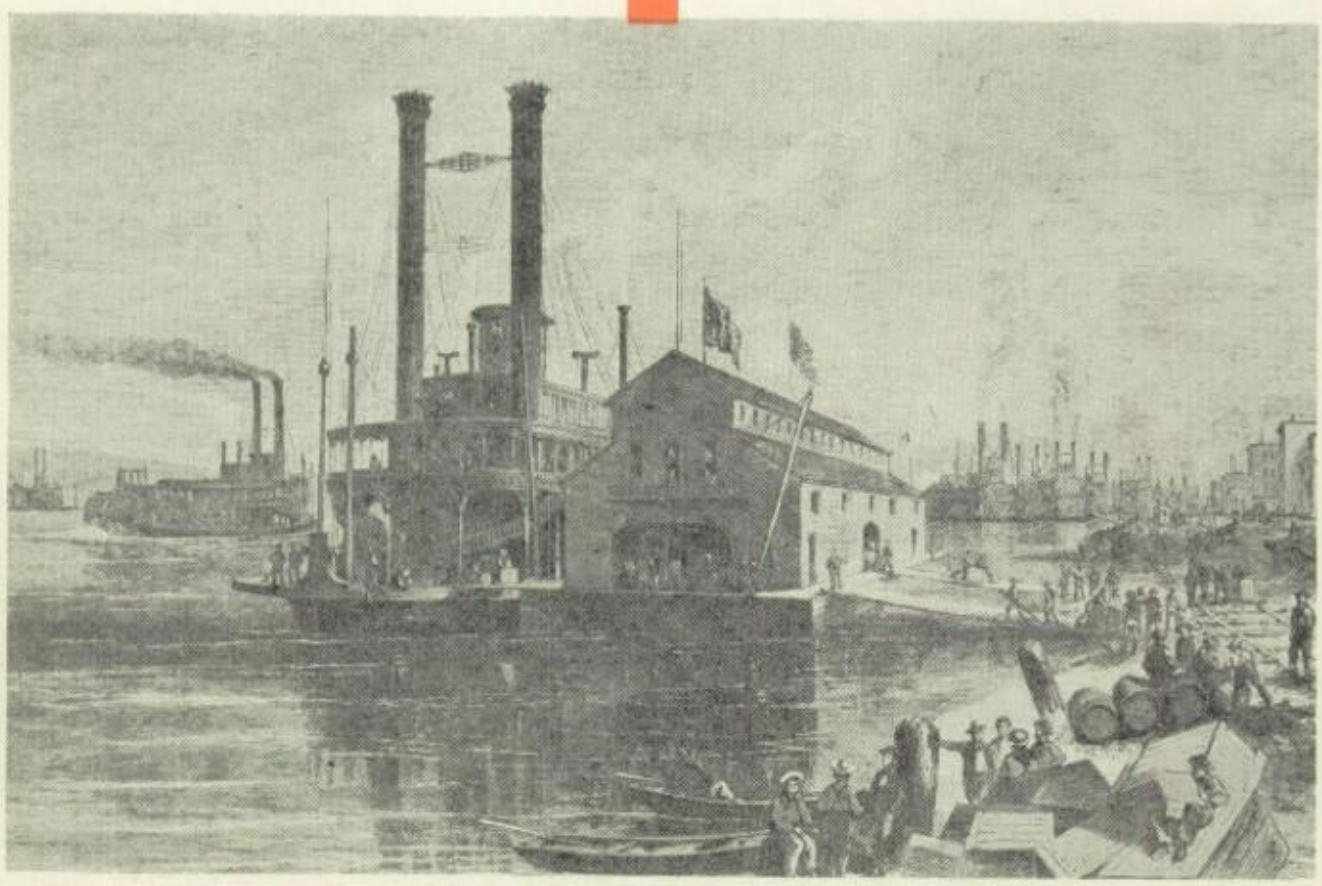
THE HERITAGE OF HOLMES...

OUR RIVER

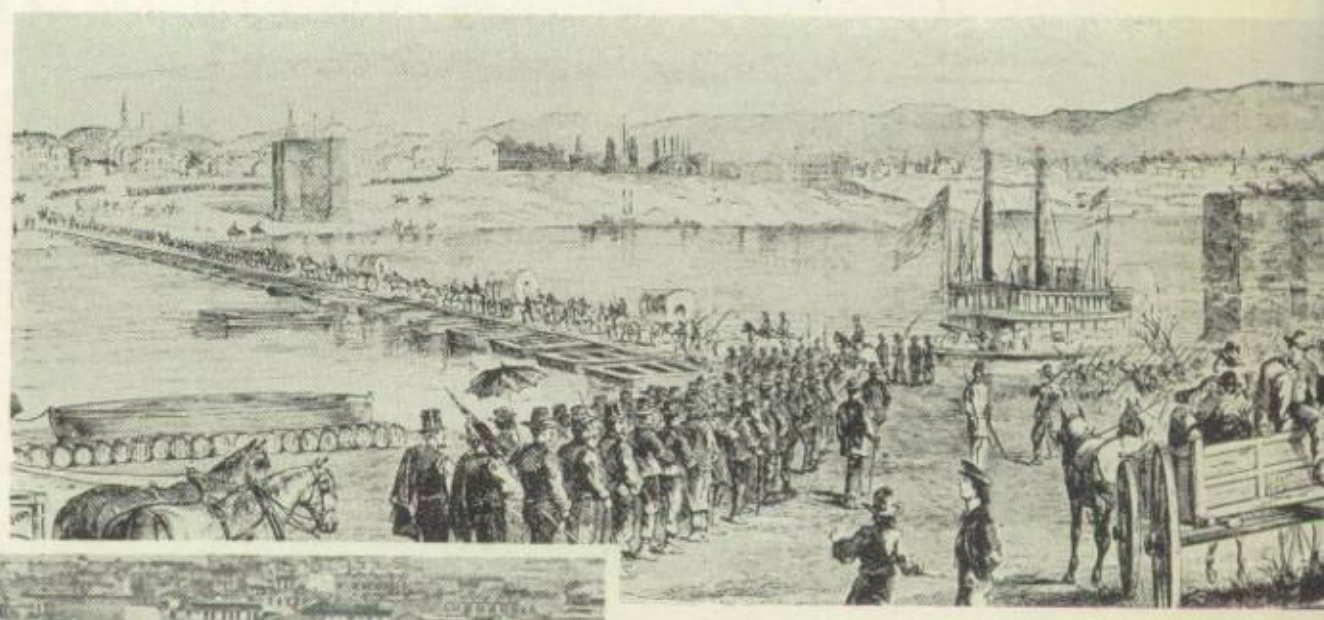
an eternal panorama

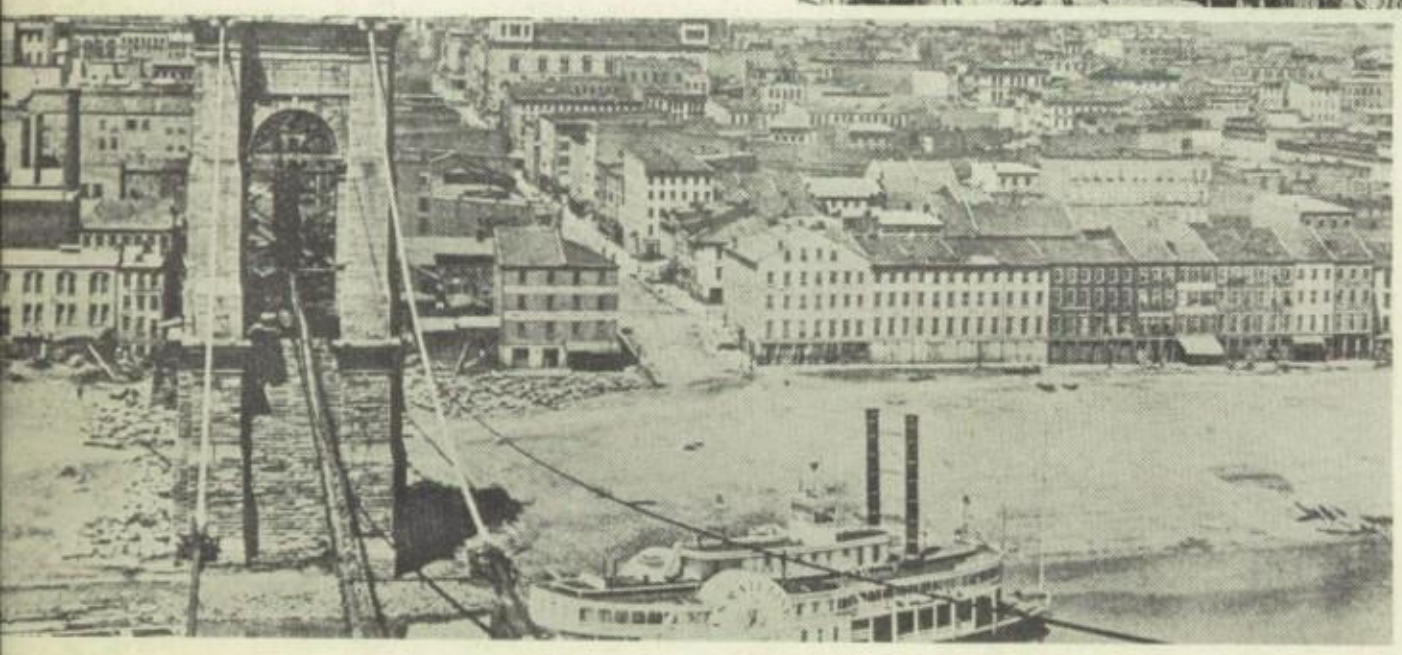


Only the Indians canoeing and the wild animals quenching their thirst disturbed the rippling waters of the Ohio River before the white men came.

By the early 1800's this tranquil stream had become a pulsating artery carrying the life-blood of the cities bred on its shores.

During the Civil War the Yankees hastily threw up a pontoon bridge from Cincinnati to Covington to rush troops to ward off an anticipated attack by General Edmund Kirby Smith marching from the South.



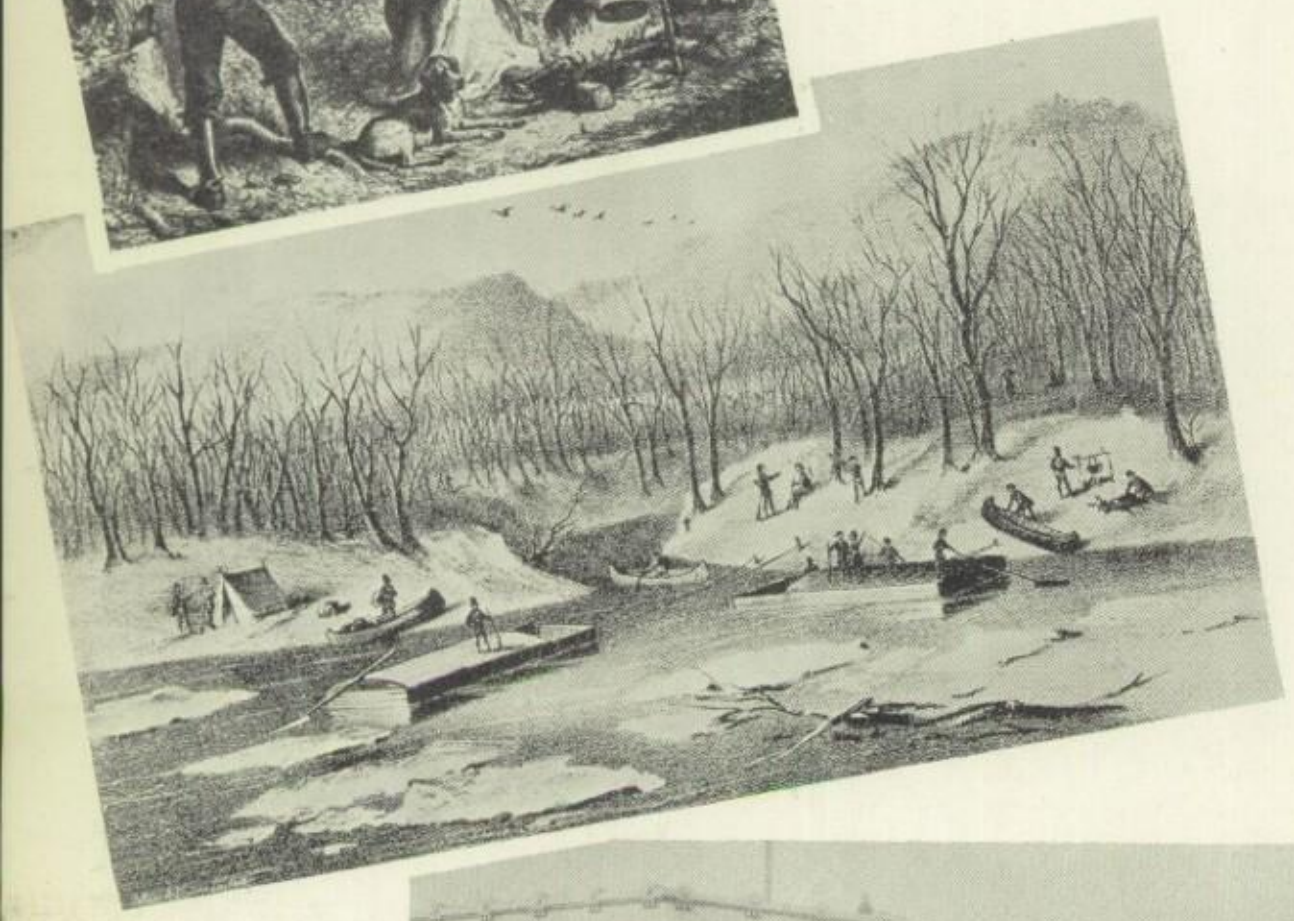


Like all other rivers, the Ohio served as a barrier until it was conquered by the building of the Suspension Bridge in 1866, the first of its kind in the world, after which the famed Brooklyn Bridge is modeled.

glides past...

Our river flows steadfastly as a monument to the development of Greater Cincinnati from a wilderness to the important commercial area it is today. As the slabs of marble build a towering monument, so do the ripples constitute the river as a lasting piece of art.

OUR TOWN | the gateway to the South



Only the strong could survive in the wilderness of early Kentucky. In 1812 settlers blazed trails and built log cabins from which our town was born. Covington, once a desolate tract of ground inhabited only by struggling homesteaders and Indians, is now the second largest city in the state.

Although thirty years have not wrought any radical changes in the business section of our town, Covington has entered the era of modern living by establishing new concerns in old places. West Pike Street during the "Roaring Twenties" looks the same today with the exception of street-car tracks, model T's, and shop signs.

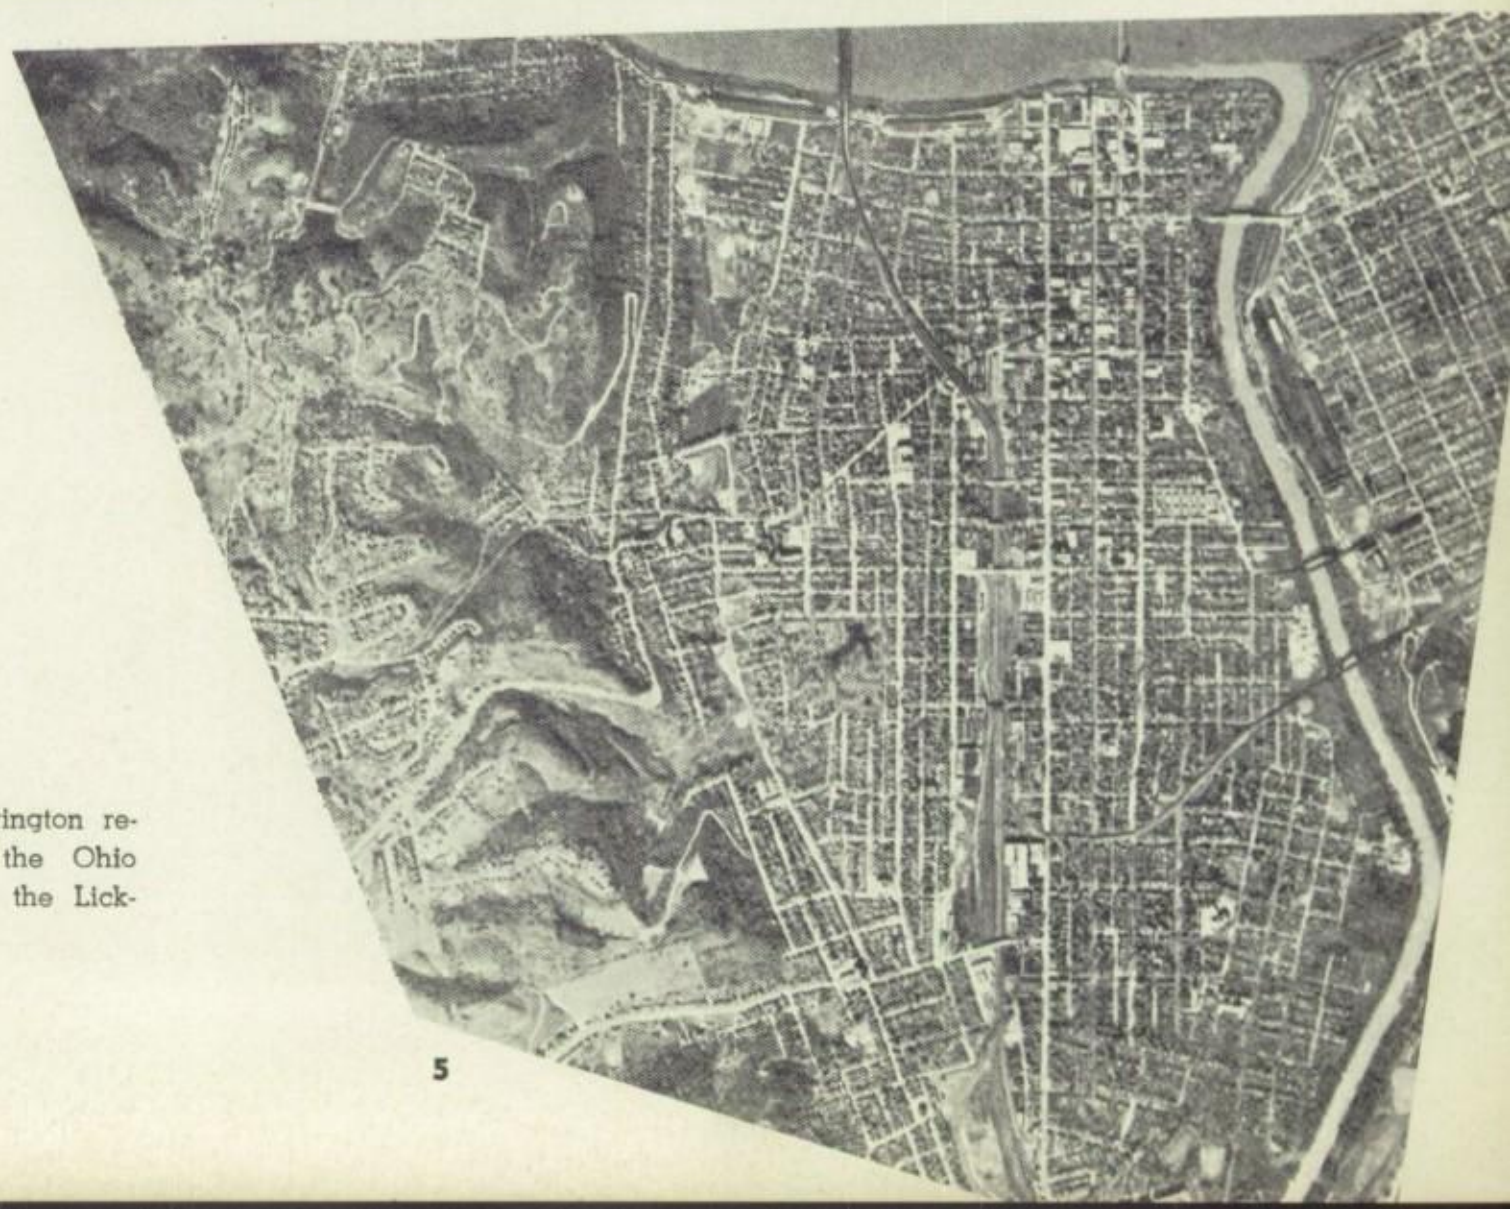
Where once a row of houses stood at Seventh and Scott Streets (right side), now is found the Federal Building (Post Office) completed in 1945, a tribute to our present-day community.



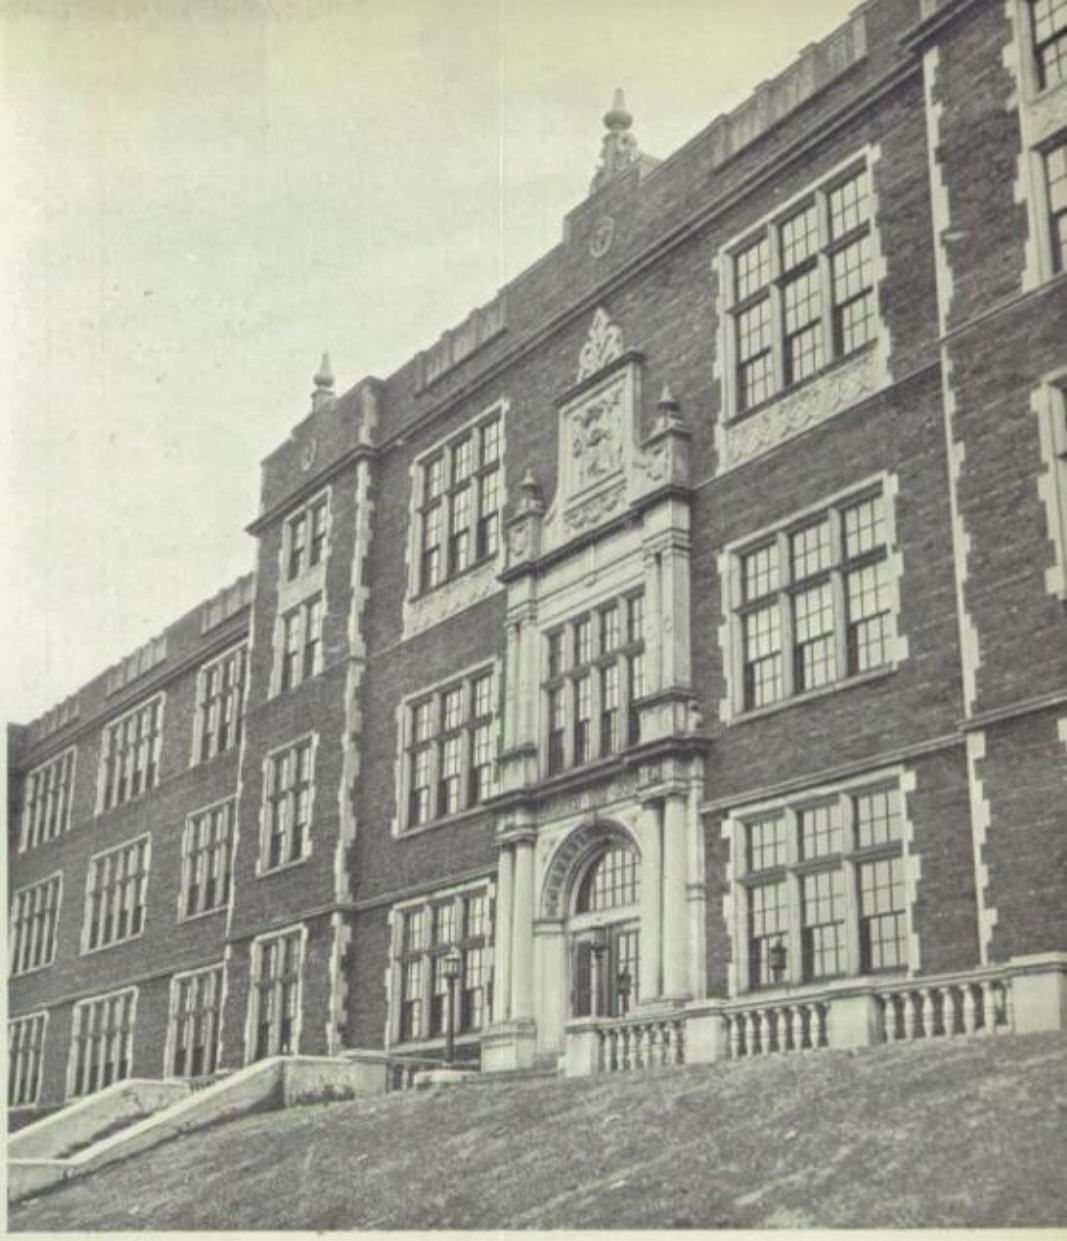
A bird's eye view of Covington reveals the city nestled in the Ohio Valley at the confluence of the Licking and Ohio Rivers.

OUR SCHOOL educates its citizens

Established in 1853, our school, then known as Central High, was confined to a single room in a district school at Eleventh and Scott Streets. Because of an increasing enrollment, a twelve-room building was erected in 1872 at Twelfth and Russell Streets which served as Covington High School until the present senior building was finished in 1919.

for life.

A steady climb in enrollment necessitated the construction of the junior building in 1927.



After the death of Daniel Holmes, the Covington Board of Education in 1917 purchased his estate of 16¾ acres for a public high school. The completion of the senior building in 1919 brought the faculty and students of the Russell Street School to Holmesdale.

Sandwiched between the junior and senior buildings is the administration building, which in 1936 arose from the wreckage of the old Holmes "castle."

In the horse-and-buggy days the towering Holmes castle, half concealed by blue-tinged trees and rolling hills, stretched skyward on the site of our school.

A CAPABLE FACULTY

MEANS EFFICIENT LEARNING

ADMINISTRATION

A familiar figure to all Holmes students is our superintendent, Glenn O. Swing. We know him as an able executive, managing the Covington school system. We know him too as a loyal spectator at Holmes Bulldogs' games and at special assemblies, even though many years have passed since he moved from the office of Holmes' principal to the desk of superintendent.

David Evans, former principal at Holmes, is now serving his first year as assistant superintendent of Covington public schools. In this capacity he turns up at all the schools keeping a watchful eye on conditions and linking the schools with the downtown office.

New to some, well known to others is our assistant principal, Harold Miller. In his first year back at Holmes senior department, he has thoroughly proved that he is an understanding advisor to all who seek his aid.

In the one year Harry T. Mitchell has served as principal, we have learned to look for his warm, friendly "Hi!" when meeting him in the halls as well as to respect the competent way he fulfills his many duties.

Under the wise direction of Herbert Tudor, assistant principal, junior department pupils feel "right at home" at school from the day they enter as "greenhorn" seventh graders until the close of their freshman year.

Sincere and soft-spoken are words that well describe Mrs. Alice Kennelly Roberts, dean of girls in the senior department. Under her understanding guidance the girls learn poise, maturity of thought, and good behavior.

An important figure in the life of all senior department boys is their dean, Leroy Draud, who has convinced them that he is ready at all times to lend a helping hand whenever it is needed.

If any difficulties arise, the girls in the junior department know they aren't alone. With the wise assistance of their dean, Miss Ruth Riley, every problem is solved with ease, and life at Holmes becomes a happier one.

After one successful year behind him, Richard Williams, dean of boys in the junior department, has demonstrated that he is just the man needed to fill the job of leading the boys in the right direction.

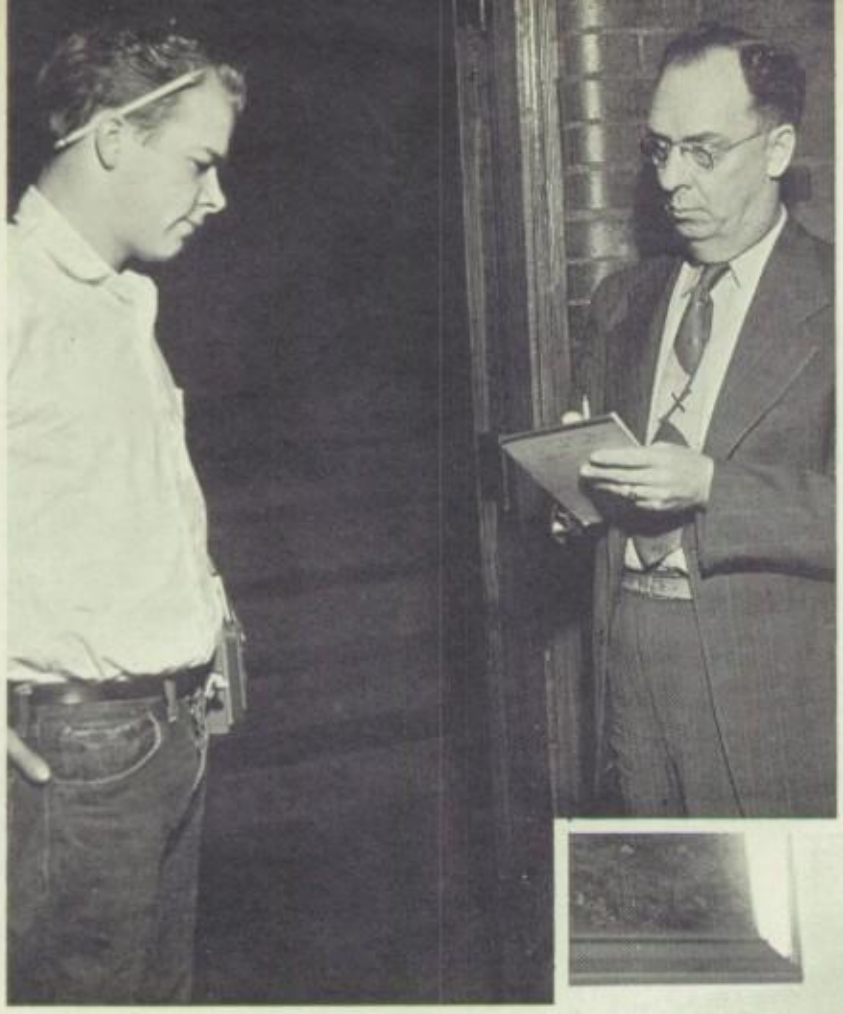
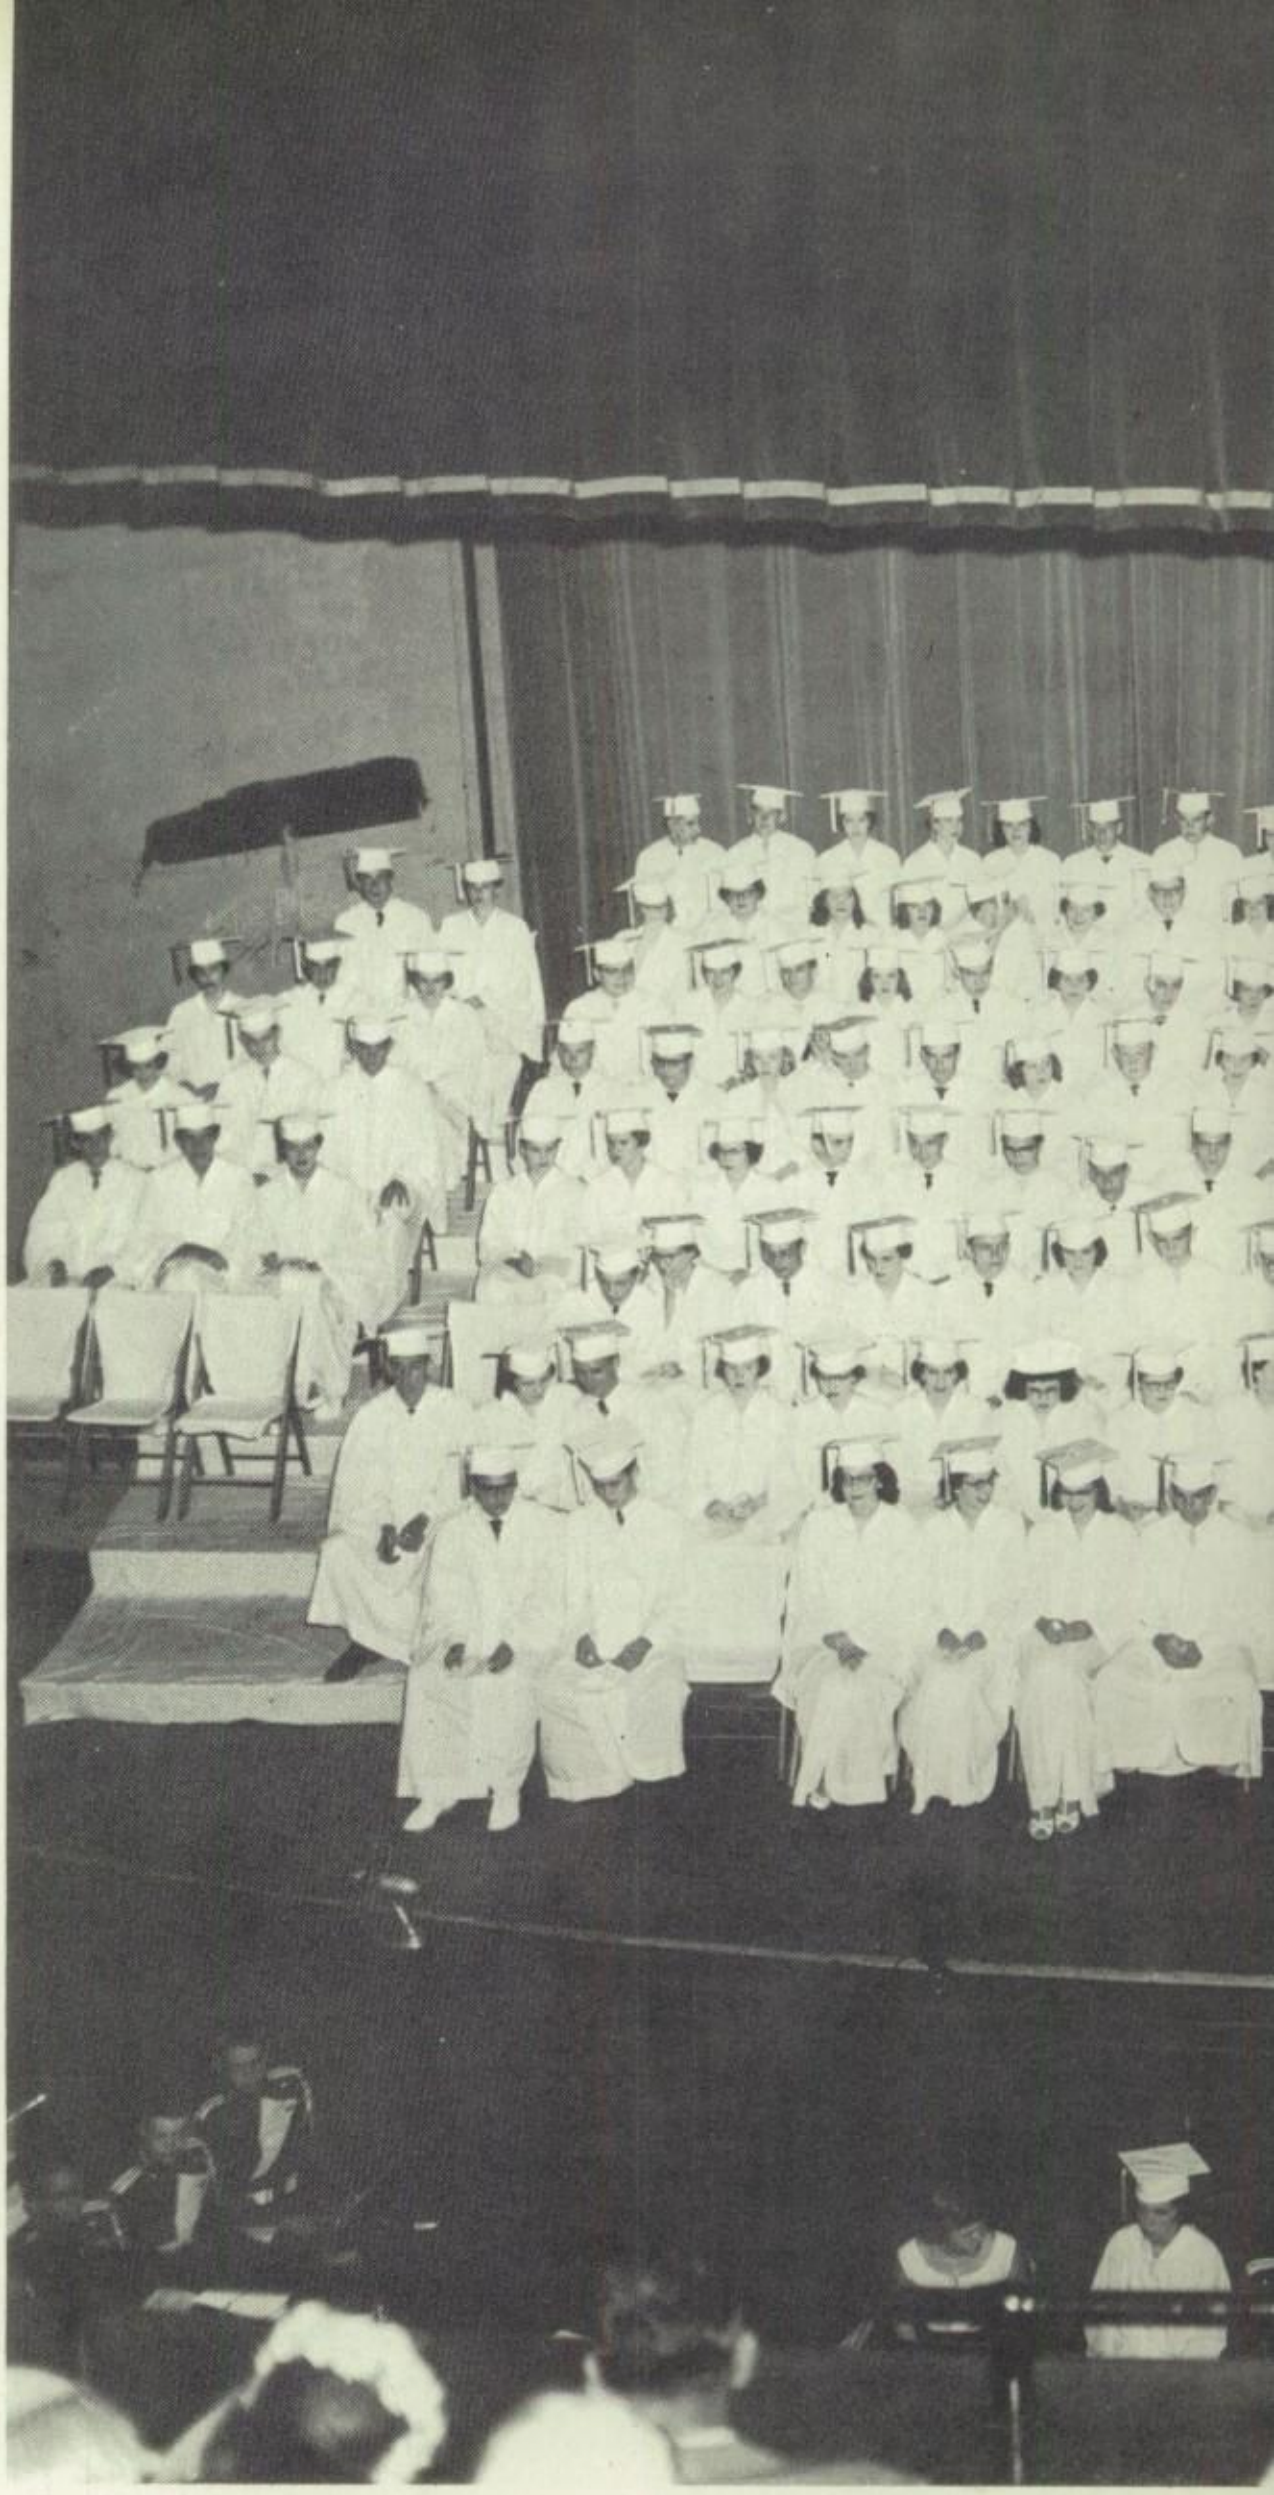
The Faculty gathers in 110 Jr. to hear announcements and explanations made by Principals Mitchell and Tudor.



One faculty member who is always easy to locate is Mr. Simons. All you have to do is cause a disturbance anywhere on the second floor of the senior building and turn around. He'll be there, writing out a slip and saying, "See your dean!" as Burnett Havlin has just found out.

Each principal has his own "Girl Friday," who keeps things in the offices running smoothly. They are (left to right) Betty Temmens (Mr. Tudor), Joyce Frakes (Mr. Mitchell), and Vera Coates (Mr. Miller).

Proudly displaying his Confederate tie is the unreconstructed rebel of Holmes, Mr. Baulch. Although 90 years have passed since the war, "Doc" as he is known to all, still feels that "the South shall rise again."



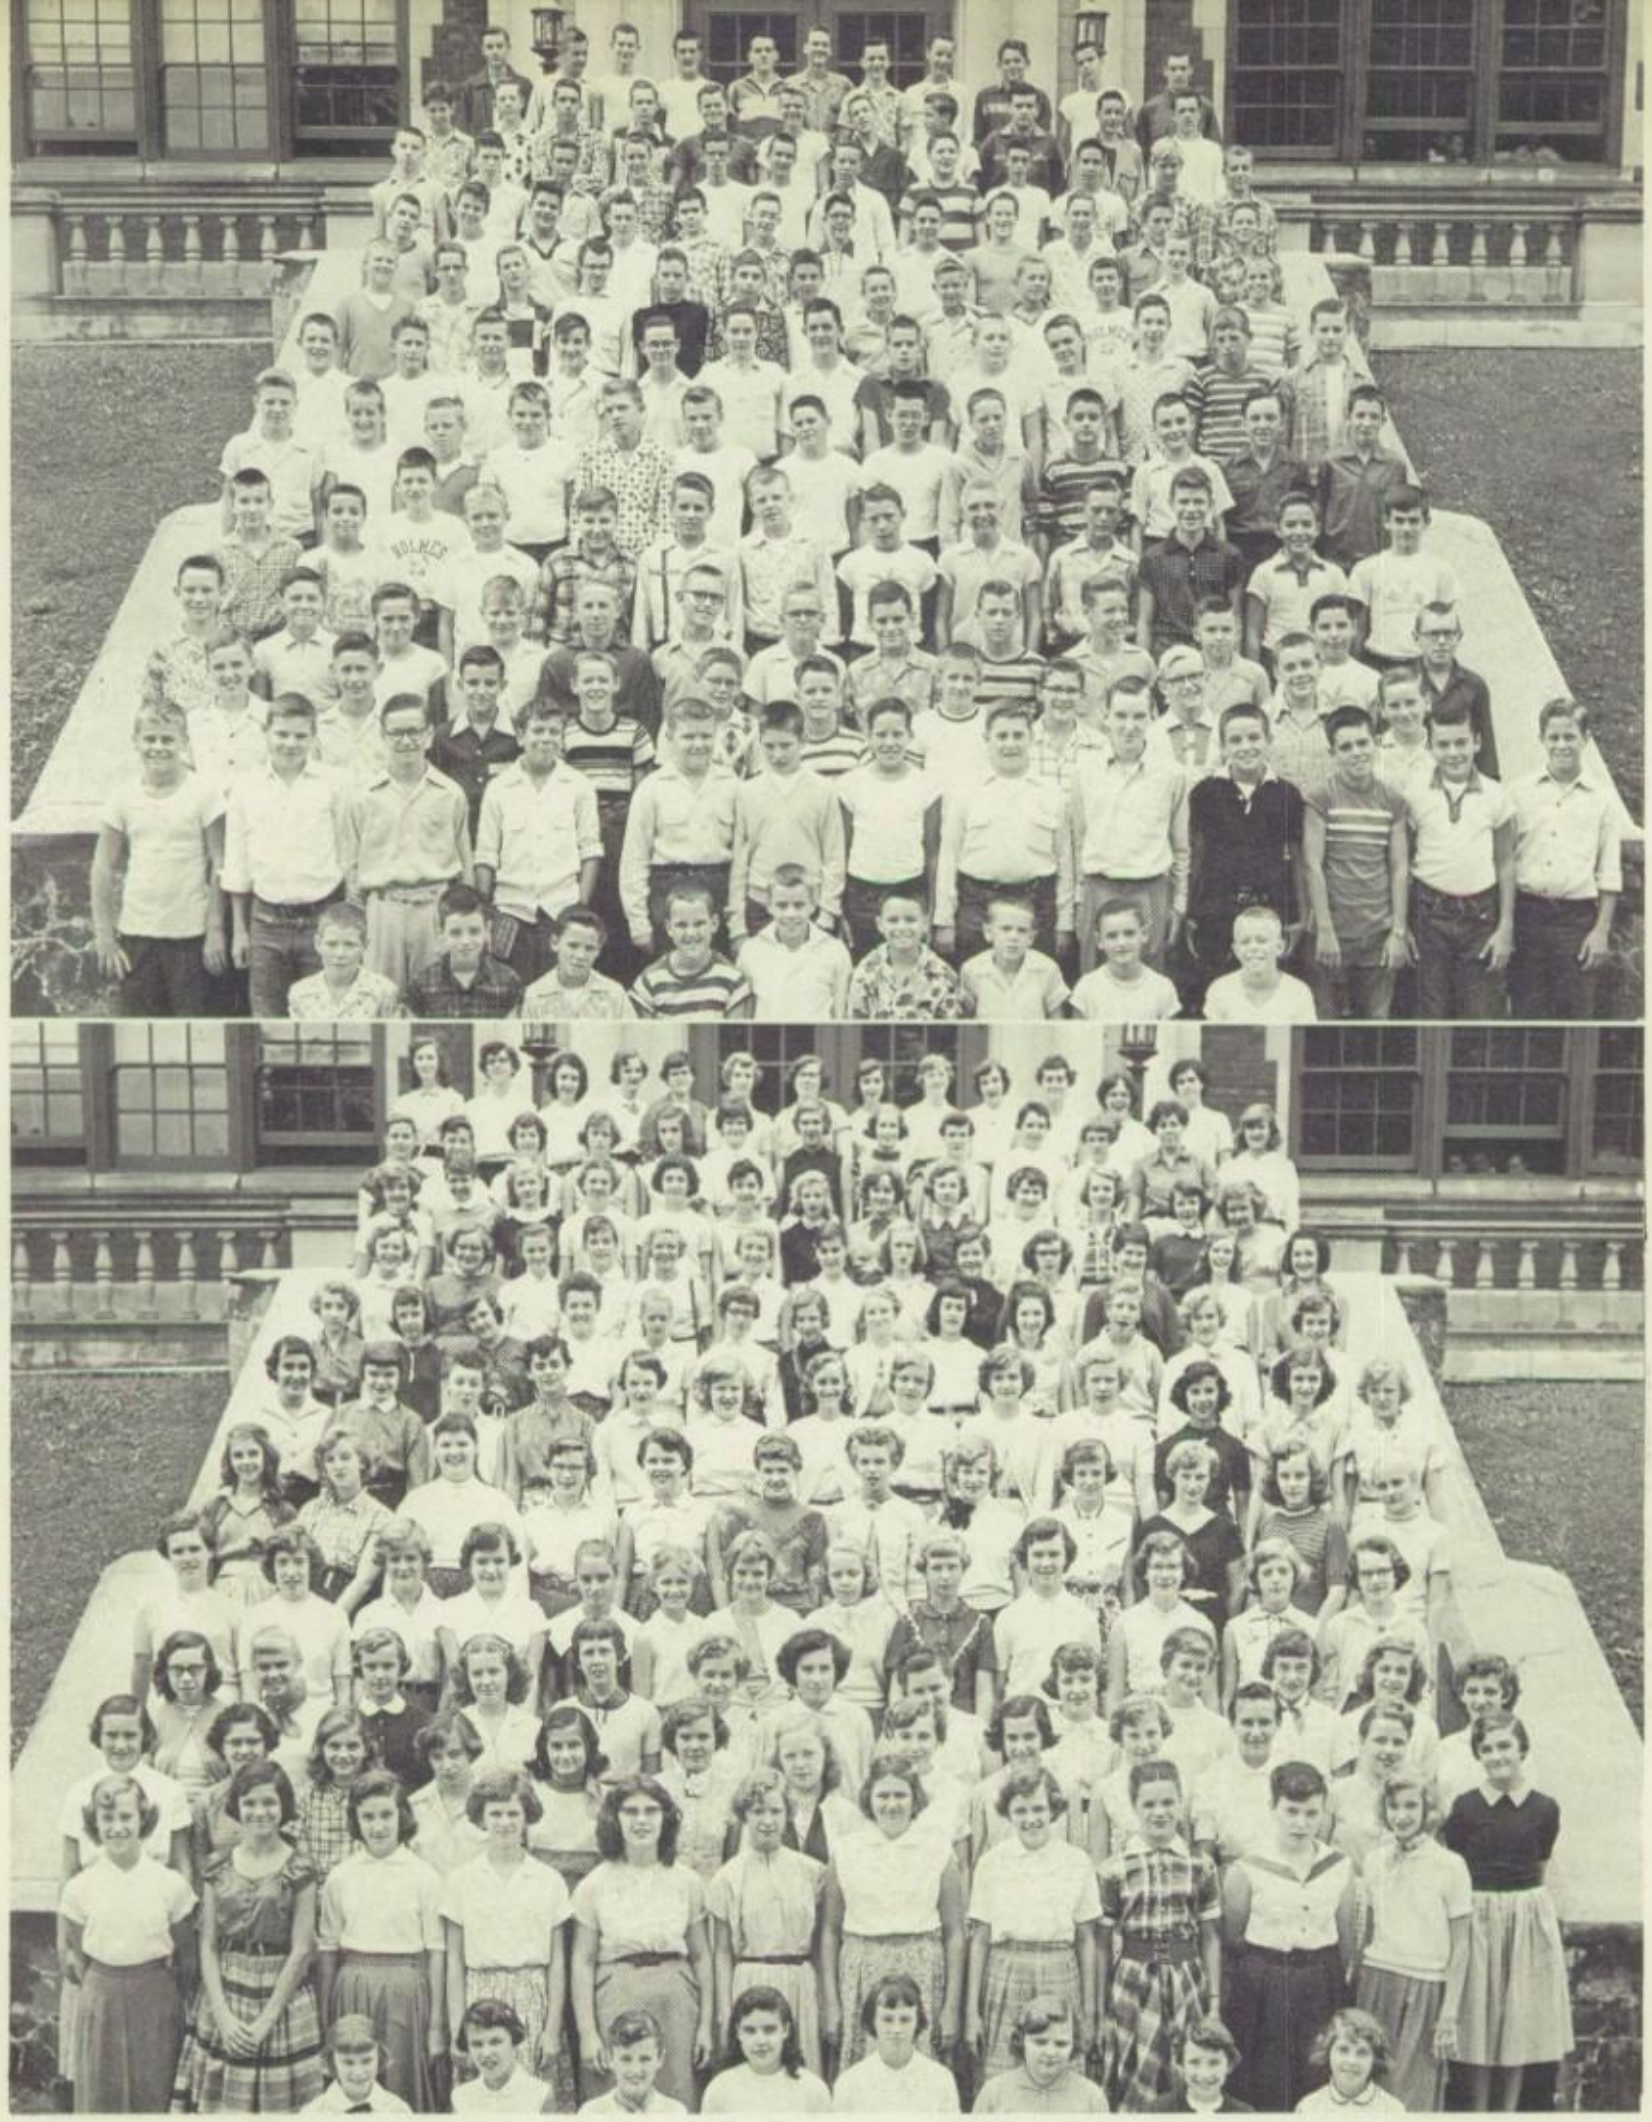
TEARS AND CHEERS

INTERMINGLE AT THE FINALE

7th GRADE

Arriving from elementary district schools, the seventh graders enter Holmes with high expectations of a new life as a teenager. Girls apply their first touch of lipstick, begin to notice boys, and dress in tight skirts, sweaters, and Spauldings. Boys indulge in football, levis, and bucks (but no girls, yet!)

Their social life is opened in the spring with the Tea Dance. The girls, usually dressed in the skirts they made in home ec, cheer the lads on to victory in the Seventh Grade Basketball Tourney.



With one year of "the old grind" behind them, the eighth graders refer to their underclassmen as "the little seventh graders." The girls have some of their affections returned in spicy little love notes (we found some in study hall). The boys are continually pestered by them to sign "slam books" which tell who likes whom and why.

By this time the fellows are now sporting pegged pants and burrs. The Basketball Tourney brings out the best players and cheerleaders of the eighth grade.

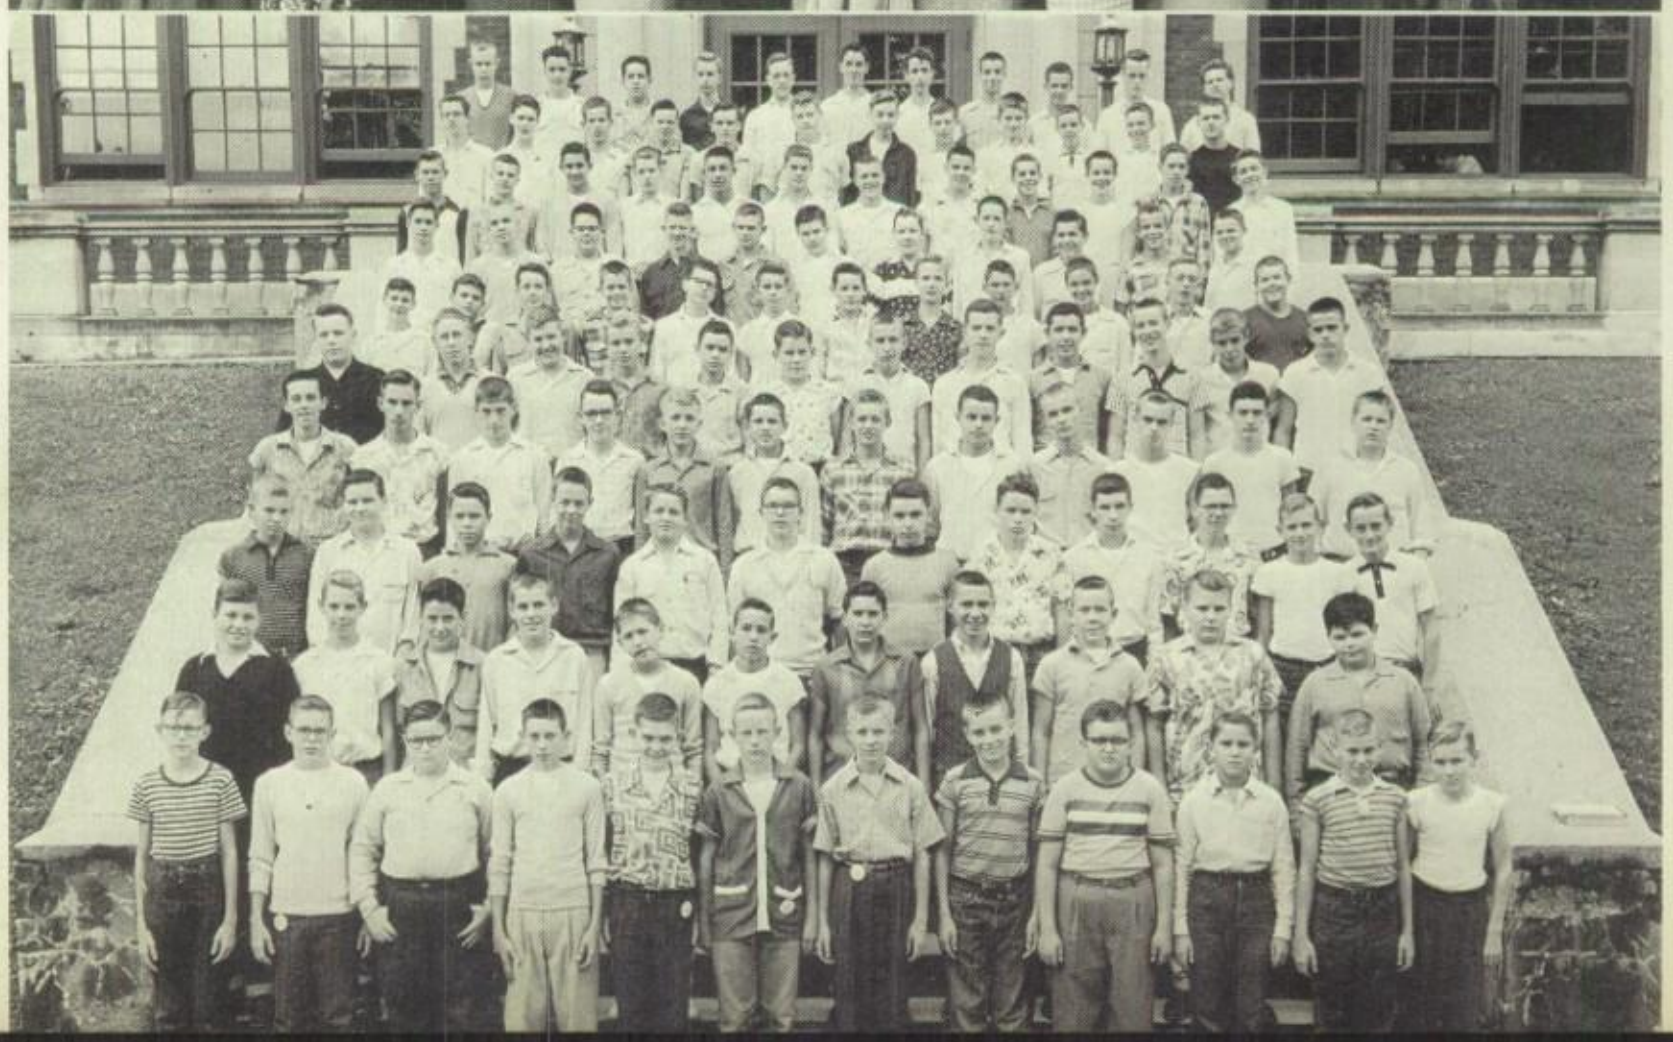
Big wheels of the junior building are the freshmen. Presiding over the Junior Student Council, policing the halls in the guise of pupil aids, and bossing most of the clubs are a few of their duties.

Finally the fellows are giving serious thought to dating, but the girls still make a merry chase. Coach Bennett drills the correct methods of basketball and football into the ninth grade squads, while Miss Griffin sponsors the sextet of frosh cheerleaders. Lasses turn up with weird hairdos—but what can you do? That's the style!



SOPHOMORES

After a year of ruling the junior building and Carlisle, the sophomores slide down to the bottom rung on the ladder of the senior building. Both the boys and girls by this time have acquired a sense of dressing and grooming; the stronger sex is doing the chasing now! Coach Ellis' influence is apparent, for the fellows practice pitching and passing—with pennies.

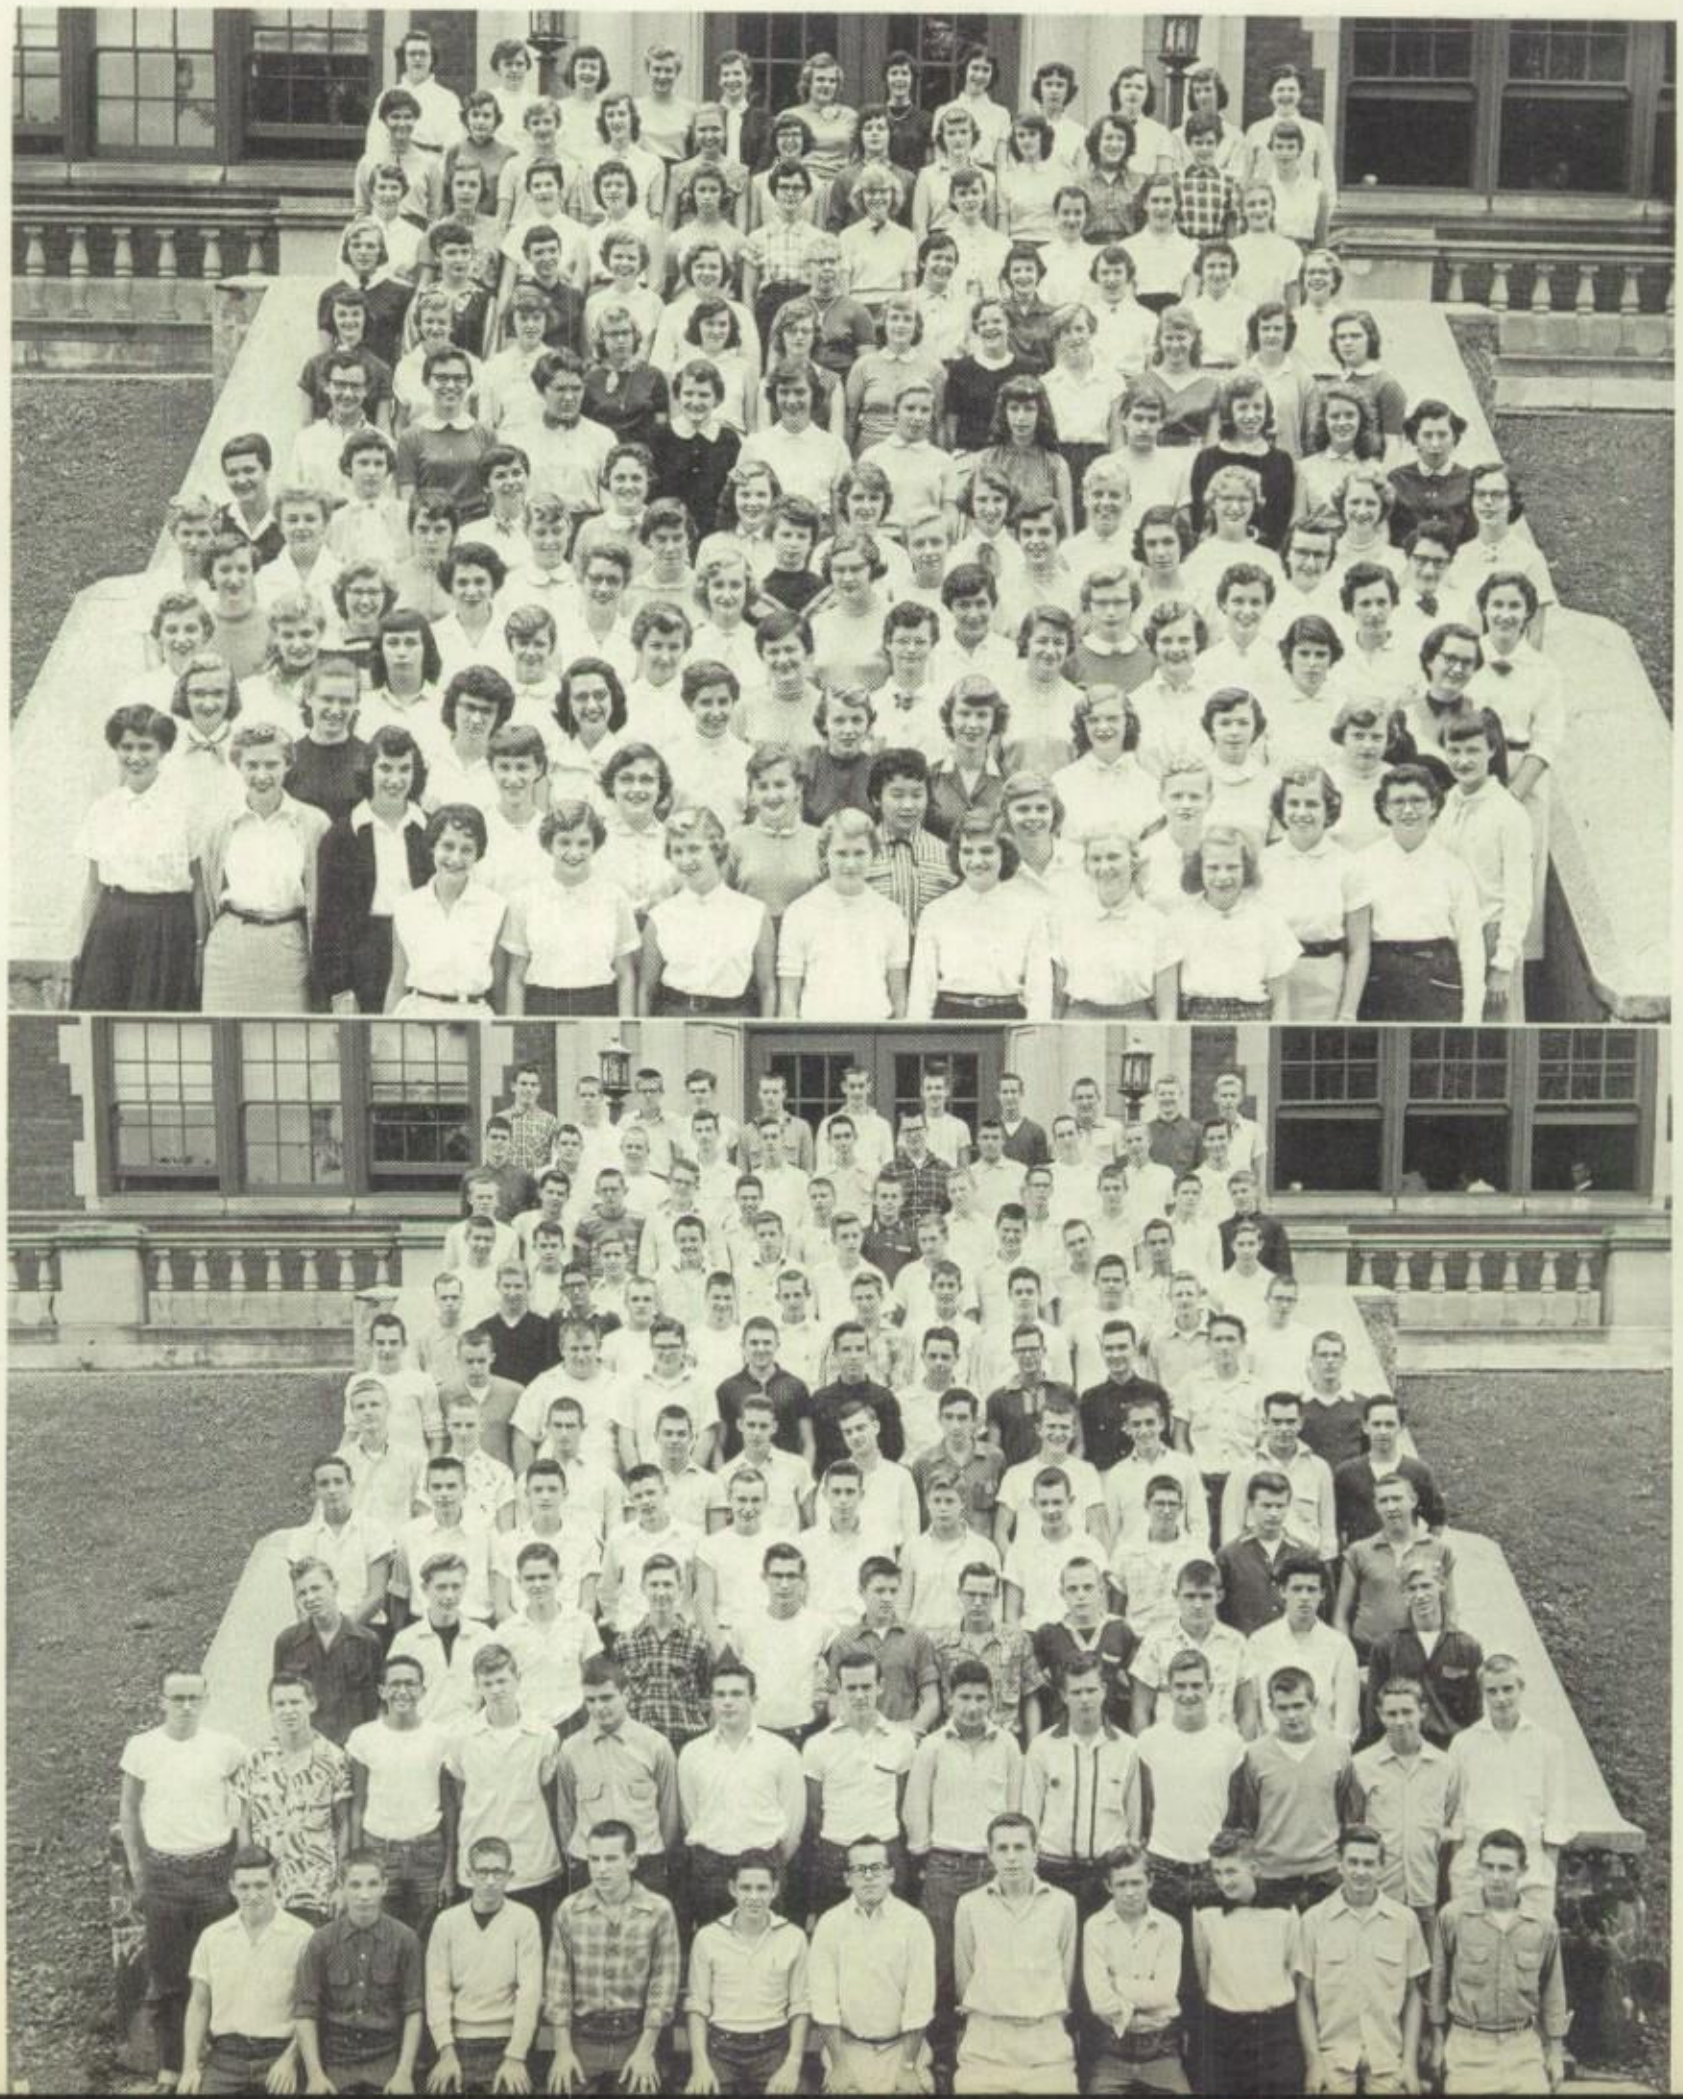
The lasses claim to have dozens of pictures of the "cutest" upper-classmen (and we mean men) stuffed in their bulging billfolds. Social life is promoted by the sophs, dreaming of running things as seniors.

JUNIORS

Feeling the pressure of "being around here for a long time" but yet not exactly BTO's are the juniors. General opinion is: "I wish those seniors would hurry and graduate. Next year we'll——better!"

President Bob Merse, Vice-president Ed Hagenseker, Secretary Judy Reich, and Treasurer Tom Ramsey organize the class and see that the Junior Revue and the Junior Prom are a success.

The fellows have finally concluded that dancing is a "must." Girls "clinch" every fad and "dig" every record by every singer.



Receiving diplomas on Graduation night marks the climax of all life at Holmes, and seniors wind up the story by one mad, rollicking, yet serious year.

Having their last fling before entering college, the Armed Forces, married life, or just plain work, they put their hearts into everything they do. Practically every senior department club and activity is at their mercy.

Class rings were distributed in December by committee members. Roger Shrout, Don Spaulding, Claud Frederick, Frank Gammon, Bob Shelby, Jack Lower, Kathleen Barton, and Jim Baker formed this year's committee.

Personal cards were selected also at this time; Mary Bramel, Jack Lower, Roger Shrout, and David Scott took charge.

The Variety Show flew by in April. But June is the big month for senior events. Girls and boys, dressed in childish outfits, arrive early on the morning of Kiddie Day to eat their breakfast in the cafeteria. On the Friday before commencement the class play is performed. Baccalaureate exercise fills the auditorium on a hot Sunday night and finally—graduation, which is followed by a dance in the gym sponsored by the PTA.

Seniors suddenly realize that their high school days are over. With diplomas in hands, they willingly step aside for others who will follow. And there they are—better prepared for whatever may come.

OUR CLASS OFFICERS

OUR CLASS SPONSOR

Best wishes
Cecil Craig

Every year the senior class of Holmes has two traditions not duplicated in any other near-by school. One of these is the banner made in the class colors and blazoned with the class motto. Ours, in navy blue and gold, shows our motto, "We Strive With Pride," against a background of the old Holmes castle. Made right here at Holmes by a committee of seniors in their junior year, it was presented during the 1954 Honor Day Program and has hung in the right panel of the stage in the auditorium ever since.

The other tradition is the class flower; the seniors of 1955 chose the white carnation.

Adding the final touch to make the seniors really feel like seniors was the arrival of the class rings—displaying the Holmes crest.

It has always been said that the senior year is the most fun-filled of all school years, and since ours is in the past, we can readily admit the truth of this statement. But 1955 wouldn't have been complete without our sponsor, Cecil Craig, who, with his winning ways and sparkling personality, helped to make ours one that we will relive again and again in our memories.

The year 1955 held another significance for him. He began the year as a bachelor, but ended it with a very attractive and popular wife. This has been quite a year for our sponsor!

None of the senior events could possibly have been successfully accomplished without the youthful touch and ideas of Mr. Craig. All the 1955'ers knew that they had a sincere friend to turn to if anything went wrong. Yes, we seniors are proud of what we have achieved and even prouder of the fact that Mr. Craig served as our class sponsor.

With deep respect and gratitude we dedicate the 1955 edition of "Lest We Forget" to him as a remembrance of his first class—The Class of 1955.

A VARIED CURRICULUM

TRAINS MINDS AND MUSCLES

STUDENT COUNCIL

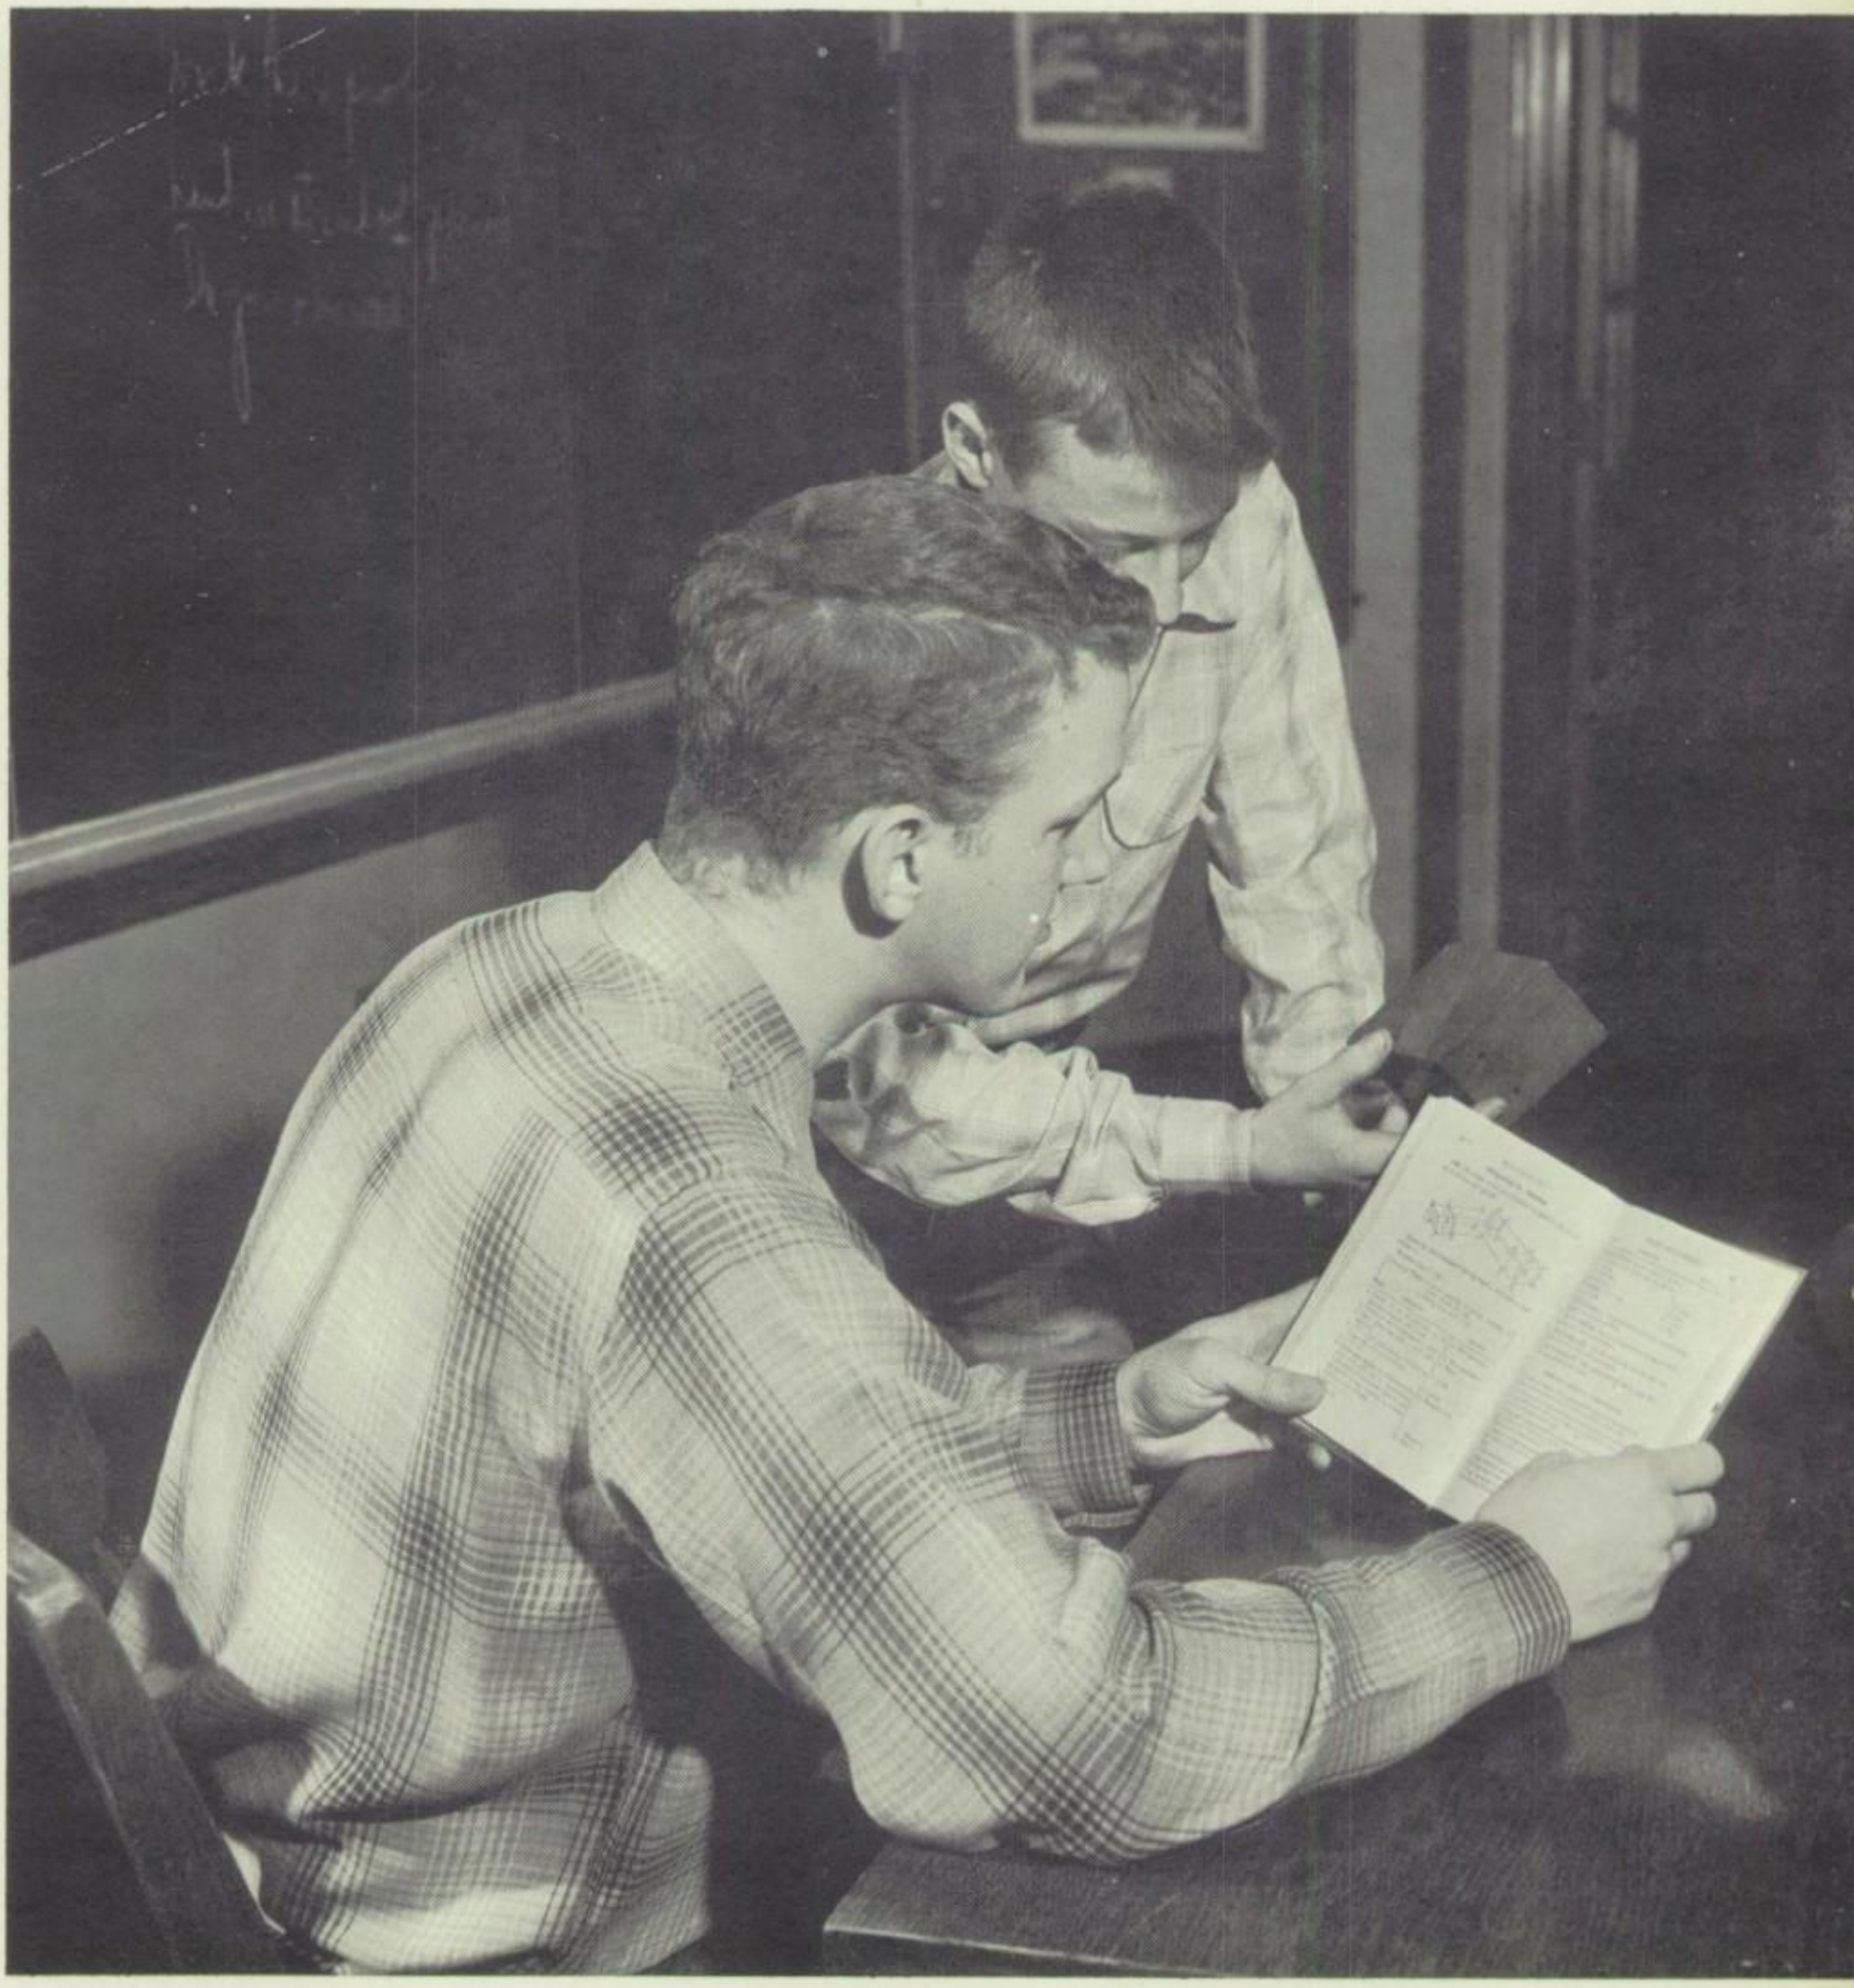
All homerooms send representatives to Student Council. This year's council consisted of Pat Cecil 102, Bill Johnson 104, John Fortner 106, Gary Reynolds 110, Danny Stephens 202, Kathleen Barton 206, Sue Spradling 208, Robert Dills 210, Sue Courtney 212, Bernard Meese 213, Irvene Burns 214, Mary Lou Smith 217, Donna Sipple 217, Gayle Cooper 220, Carol Treat 222, Delores Haley 224, Claud Frederick 302, Betty Jo Herron 304, Carol Sharp 306, Ed Hagenseker 309, Judy Reich 309, Jim McKenney 312, Jo Ann Eckler 323, Cecil Baker 327, Janice Robinson 202 Ad., Dorothy Scroggins 300 Ad., and Bill Arnold 302 Ad.

The democratic form of government is exemplified in our own school by the Student Council, a body of the students, by the students, and for the students.

Four officers chosen by popular vote and representatives from each homeroom meet on the first and third Tuesday of every month to discuss and solve school problems. This year they organized the Pep Club to promote better sportsmanship at games, in addition to their regular chores of selling programs and decorating the goal posts at every home game.

Members of the Senior and Junior Councils attend the Safety Institute in Cincinnati which makes teenagers more safety-conscious.

In the spring the annual election campaign gets under way. The halls of each building are plastered with posters screaming the merits of able pupils wishing to step into the council positions being vacated.



SOLID GEOMETRY

Two years of algebra, one of plane geometry, a semester of trigonometry, and a semester of solid geometry is enough to make anyone see things in 3's———3D that is! Ralph Guenther (sitting) and Roger Shrout are not playing with blocks, but are solving a solid geometry problem.

SCIENCE

Science saves time, labor, money, and lives. On the threshold of the Atomic Age, many men and women are needed in research work for the welfare of humanity, both in peace and war. In biology, physics, physical geography, and chemistry classes, Holmes is doing its share of teaching teenagers the ways of this world and the world to come.

Gaining more popularity among students is the study of French. They find the language is not only interesting but, when spoken correctly, beautiful as well. French instructor Mr. Luke explains a word to student Bob Shelby. At the first of the year Mr. Luke had a little language difficulty of his own. His students had trouble understanding his English accent (strictly Newcastle) and he couldn't decipher our American idioms. But after a year at Holmes he can toss out as much teenage slang as anyone.

LANGUAGES

French, Latin, and Spanish make up the foreign language department of our school. In these subjects students not only learn how to speak the language but study the customs of the people, and even how to improve their own language.

At the right is the bust of Virgil which inhabits room 212 Sr. Virgil stands as a sort of symbol of the perished Latin world to all who have studied the language. Every now and then students may be found paying Virgil back for all the hard work he has caused them by decorating him with a dunce cap or by putting a chalk cigarette between his lips.

Teaching Spanish students more about the customs and habits of the "South of the Border" people is the chief aim of the Pan American club. Each winter the members have a dinner at the Spanish Inn, and each spring they take to the outdoors for a picnic.

Home Economics is an important subject both in the junior and senior departments. Here girls learn the essentials of what might be a part of their life's work—cooking and sewing.

Cooking and sewing are required in the seventh and eighth grades and are elective in senior high school.

Every spring the work of the sewing classes is displayed to the public in a Style Show at a PTA meeting. If you would like to find out how tasty their foods are, just take a stroll past the doors of either department and sniff.

M-m-m-m, where's that wonderful aroma coming from? Delores Hon (left) and LaVern Hamm help in making the third floor of the senior department smell just like Mom's kitchen.

Una Mae Rhodus (left) and Delores Baker have found that sewing is fun as well as a skill they will be able to put to use in the future.

LIBRARY

If you are in search of an interesting book, some valuable information, or just some relaxation with a newspaper, the library is the place for you. With the help of the librarian, Mrs. Bonner, or her capable aids, whatever it is that you are looking for is easily found. Aids Mary Lou Hesser (left) and Joetta Hodges demonstrate their efficiency.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Teaching boys the fundamentals of mechancial drawing, woodwork, and printing is the aim of the Industrial Arts Department of Holmes. Room 118 Sr. finds boys planning homes and machines in mechanical drawing class. Useful products for the home are built by the skillful hands of woodworking boys. After a short term of experience the printing students put their knowledge to use, and report cards, PTA announcements, absentee blanks, and excuse slips are turned out easily and quickly. Much is learned in this department which proves to be of value after graduation.

A two-year course in woodworking teaches the essentials of carpentry to boys preparing for this trade. Paul Kramer adds the finishing touches to his cedar chest.

Printing students must be able to read words backwards as well as forwards in order to hand-set type. Locking up a form on a cylinder press are James Reilly (left) and Bill Bobbitt.

Future draftsmen and engineers master the art of using precision instruments in reducing and drawing plans of everything from a motor to a house. Sketching a plan of an automobile motor are mechanical drawing students (left to right) Robert Roland, Howard Goodrich, and Charles Collett.

Students know that in order to obtain a job as a secretary after they have completed high school, they must learn shorthand. Two years of this subject are given at Holmes and are required of those who take the Commercial Course. To the students who are going to college shorthand also proves of value for taking notes quickly. Irma Knight (left) and Shirley Burch get a little practice in reading and writing shorthand during their spare time.

One machine that certainly gets a workout by commercial students is the adding machine. Richard Shipp has discovered that brains as well as time are saved by its use. Column after column of bookkeeping figures are added quickly and accurately when the "human mind" is put into operation.

One of the best liked subjects in high school is typing. As well as being very useful in years to follow, it is fun to learn. Some students take typing as an extra subject if it isn't required in their course, but in the Commercial Course two years must be completed. Those who take typing and are good at it show that they can concentrate and skillfully use their fingers. Doris Bickers demonstrates how the dictaphone aids the typist.

BUSINESS

Holmesites who are not planning to attend a college after finishing high school very often choose the Commercial Course. Typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping are the main subjects in the preparation for secretarial work. By the time pupils have completed this course they are all ready to go out into business and earn their own living. Good secretaries are always needed, and many of the best have graduated from Holmes.

Helping to get the work of three principals and the four deans efficiently completed is the chief aim of the aids. Girls carefully chosen for intelligence and dependability give up one of their study halls or even their homeroom period to serve as aids. During their time on duty they answer the telephone, run errands, type, file, check on absentees, and do a hundred useful chores each day. Aid Ruth Childress is shown sorting the mail, one of the first jobs to be done every morning.

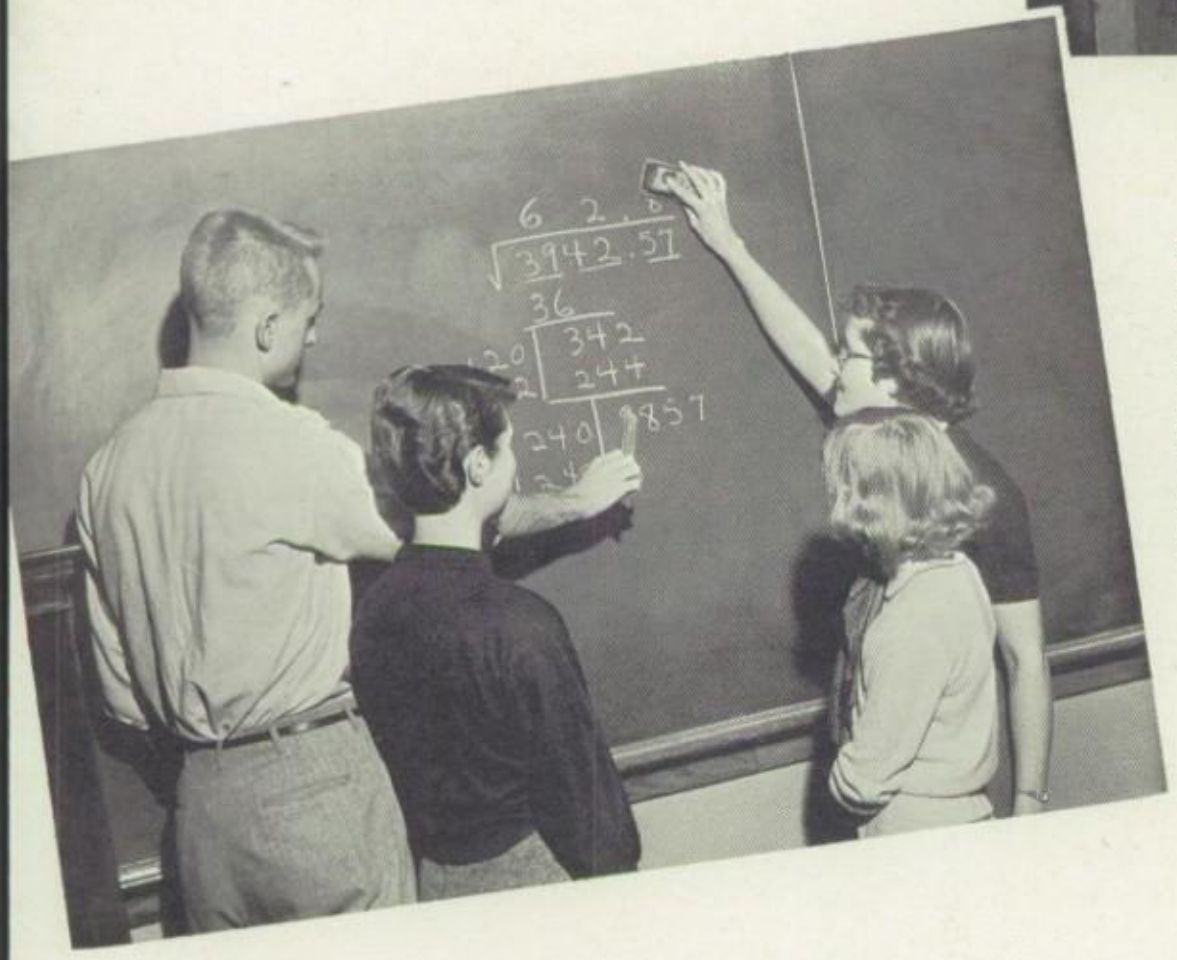
The time of day every student looks forward to is "chow time." During lunch period all forget their classes and relax in the modern cafeteria which day after day serves pupils and faculty. The smiling faces of the workers who keep things running smoothly are there to greet everyone, along with the mingled aromas of cakes, pies, and hot dogs. By one o'clock Holmesites are ready to continue on with the rest of the day's school work.

In the freshman year here at Holmes the junior department's dean of boys, Mr. Williams, asks a certain number of students to serve as Audio-Visual Aids. All the movies of the classrooms, assembly programs, and even pay movies are run by these boys. Bob Jenkins (left) and Scotty Strehle get the projector ready for the next showing of a movie.

On the main floor of the Ad. Building a well equipped Book Store serves all students before school, during lunch time, and after school. Mr. Prezioso and his aids keep things running smoothly, even at the first of the year when the rush is on for new books. (Above left) Carol Oden and Dick Pope take a look at the articles in the showcase.

Any student who takes history, civics, economics, or law is eligible to join the Social Science Club, which has open discussions about news events, politics, and government. This year the club, as well as hearing speakers at several meetings, took two consecutive senior assembly programs to present a mock trial. (Above left to right) Mary Lou Murphy, Harold Skinner, Jerry Nevil, Paul Kramer, Wayne Buford, Gayle Schlapp, and Jim Henry carry on a discussion.



Students who are interested in teaching usually join the Cadet Teachers Club. This organization, which meets once a month, gives the members a chance really to decide whether the profession is what they want. In the spring members go to District Schools and observe the different techniques used. Looking pretty puzzled themselves, (left to right) Dewey Sanders, Marilyn Lucas, and Mildred Cogswell are trying to solve a math problem for seventh grader Reva Webster.

The Holmes chapter of the National Honor Society elects members on the basis of superiority in character, scholarship, leadership, and service.

The upper ten per cent of a class is initiated into the society in the junior year, and an additional five per cent is added during the senior year.

TEAMWORK, AND FAIR PLAY

Captain Dave Bishop prepares to pass.

FOOTBALL

Highlight of the sports picture at Holmes in the fall is football This year the Bulldogs finished first in the NKAC and sixteenth in the state with an impressive record of seven conference wins and only one loss.

Four Holmes gridders were elected All-State: Carl Leistner and Lowell Wood, guards; Don Lewis, end; and Bob White, fullback. Dave Bishop, ace runner, piled up a record of 16 tallies, and Charles Reed earned the nickname "The Toe" by kicking 12 extra points during the season.

Bulldogs began their season with a not too impressive 13-0 victory over Erlanger, in which Bishop and Morgan scored for Holmes.

However, the Canines showed more of their traditional speed and agility in trouncing the Ludlow Panthers 32-6 in the second game.

In the 33-6 upset by Dixie Heights, the Bulldogs learned that, with enough determination, a small backfield can slice through a larger, more experienced line such as Holmes supposedly had.

The Big Red returned to their winning ways in the following games, downing Newport Catholic 28-6 and St. Xavier 18-6. In these games Dave Bishop, Bob Merse, and Bob White distinguished themselves by fine offensive plays.

Thirty-five fathers glowed with pride October 8 as every player on the squad saw action against Campbell County during the annual Fathers' Night game. The Bulldogs won 41-0.

The Canines tasted defeat for the second time in a 28-6 non-conference loss from Henry Clay, as the Blue Devils' star tailback, Walt Fitts, scored every touchdown for Clay.

The remainder of the season was comparatively easy sailing for the Bulldogs, who edged out the Highlands Bluebirds despite rain and mud, waxed their arch-rivals Newport Public 31-12, and clinched the NKAC title by a walk-away 40-7 victory over Bellevue.

Holmesmen were very fortunate to have Blanton Collier and Bill Arnsperger, head coach and assistant coach at UK, as principal speakers for the annual Football Banquet, held December 4, 1954 at the school cafeteria.

Bucking the Ludlow defense, Bob Merse tries a plunge through the middle as Dave Bishop (61) runs his interference.

For the hundreds of excited spectators and the players, a football game can be a dramatic and important event. A fumble by the local eleven seems a tragedy at the time, and a touchdown makes all rooters hoarse from cheering.

The faces of the players on the bench in the top picture, taken at a tense moment in the Dixie game, reflect deep thought (with the exception of a camera ham or two). The bottom picture shows the reaction of the players and coaches as a Holmesman goes over for the deciding TD in the Bellevue game.

BASKETBALL

The Holmesmen certainly won their share of basketball honors this year. In addition to the coveted NKAC crown, they copped the first annual Newport Invitational Tournament.

After winning handily 61-53 over Dilce Combs, a down-state power-house, they went on to overwhelm Campbell County 71-58 and Newport Catholic 64-52.

At the outset of the season the Bulldogs shared the spotlight with the Newport Wildcats, beating the 'Cats on the local hardwood 57-47 and losing to them 76-60 at Newport.

The name "Henry" seemed to jinx the Ellismen, for St. Henry and Henry Clay handed them their only other defeats.

Moving into the District Tournament, held at Dixie Heights, the Holmesmen rolled over Covington Catholic, March 4, in an easy 79-59 victory and trounced Dixie's Colonels March 5, 74-55 before a capacity crowd.

However, the Bulldogs were eliminated in the first round of the Regional Tourney, March 9, by Newport 69-58.

"C" CLUB

In every sport there are a few players who are outstanding in their playing ability and team spirit. These are our honored C men. The C, of course, stands for Covington, dating back to the old days when Holmes was called Covington High School. When Covington became Holmes, the athletes felt the tradition was too important to break. The C remains the symbol of athletic distinction.

Lowell Wood is so proud of his newly earned letter that he takes his lunch period to sew it on.

At the annual football banquet Co-captain Lowell Wood and Captain Dave Bishop speak to the players as Coach Ellis and Assistant Principal Harold Miller watch the proceedings.

NKAC CHAMPS

At the close of '55, the Holmes athletic teams wrote "finis" to one of their most successful seasons. For the first time since 1947 the Holmesmen won the honor of wearing the coveted NKAC crown in both football and basketball.

Donna,
Best of luck to a real nice little girl. Be good + I'll see you at the games next fall.

CHEERLEADERS

Most girls dream of being cheerleaders, but only a few have just the right combination of pep, agility, coordination, and looks. Each September, comes the test—when a group of faculty members watch the antics and cartwheels of the eager aspirants and choose the various squads. Freshmen yell-belles are under the supervision of Miss Griffin. Varsity and reserve pepsters are sponsored by Miss Fightmaster. Sporting red and white costumes, they can be seen at every athletic event cheering their team on to victory.

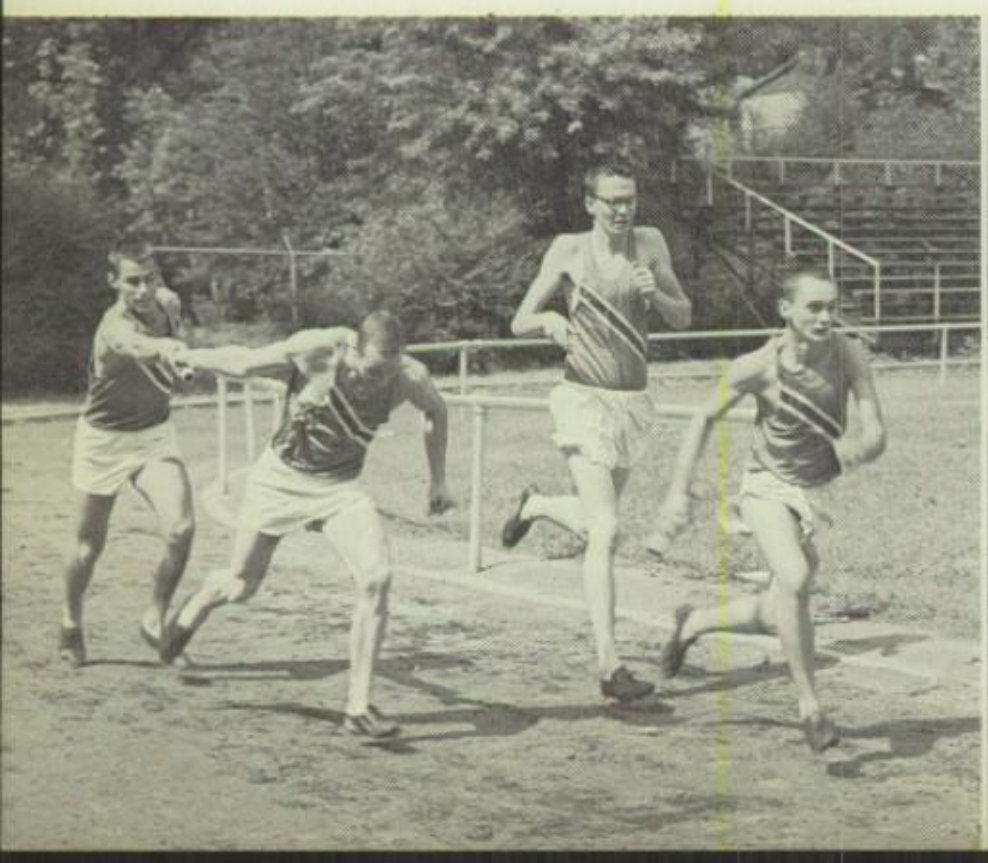
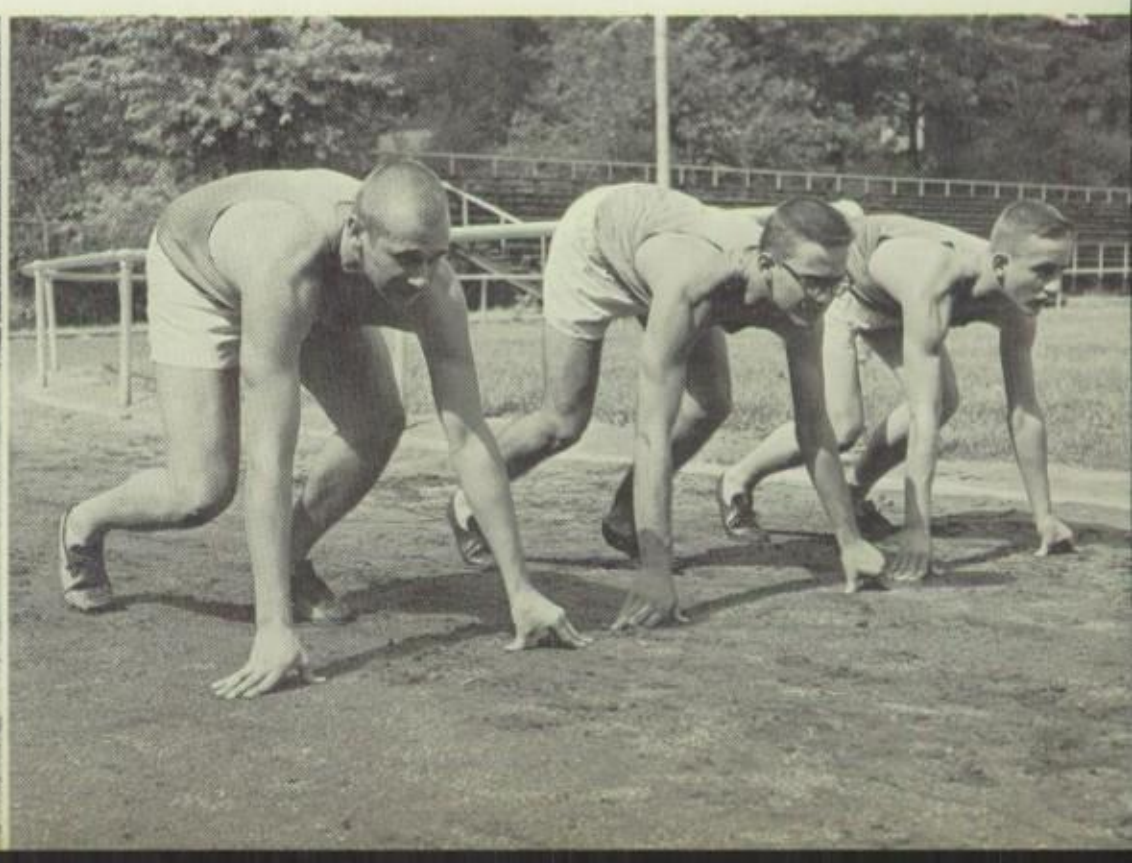
TRACK

Our track team is justly proud of having been the only northern Kentucky team to be invited to the Cincinnati Invitational Relays this year. We also competed in the regional meet, the state meet, and the Lafayette and Newport, Harrison and Newport triangular meets.

George Connley passes the stick to Connie Stanton as Scotty Mathews relays to Captain "Rabbit" Lancaster in the 880's.



Awaiting the gun are senior sprinters Dave Bishop, Jack Lower, and Bob Jenkins.



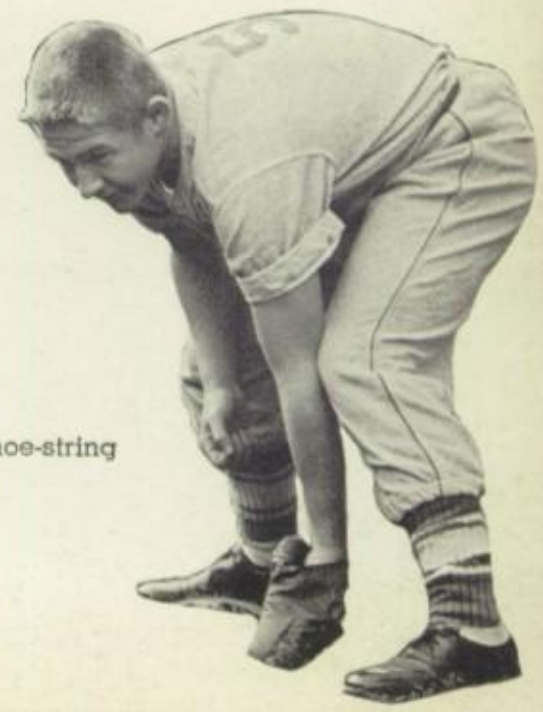
Seated: B. Aker, M. Hickey, H. Chevalier, M. Conley, J. Evans, W. Klaserner, M. Higgins, B. Norman, D. Shumaker. Standing: Coach Ellis, N. Holbrook, C. Frederick, C. Davis, F. Lyons, J. Dunn, J. Ryan, D. Cox, G. McClure, B. Goode, Coach Baker.

Harold Chevalier takes a hefty swing.

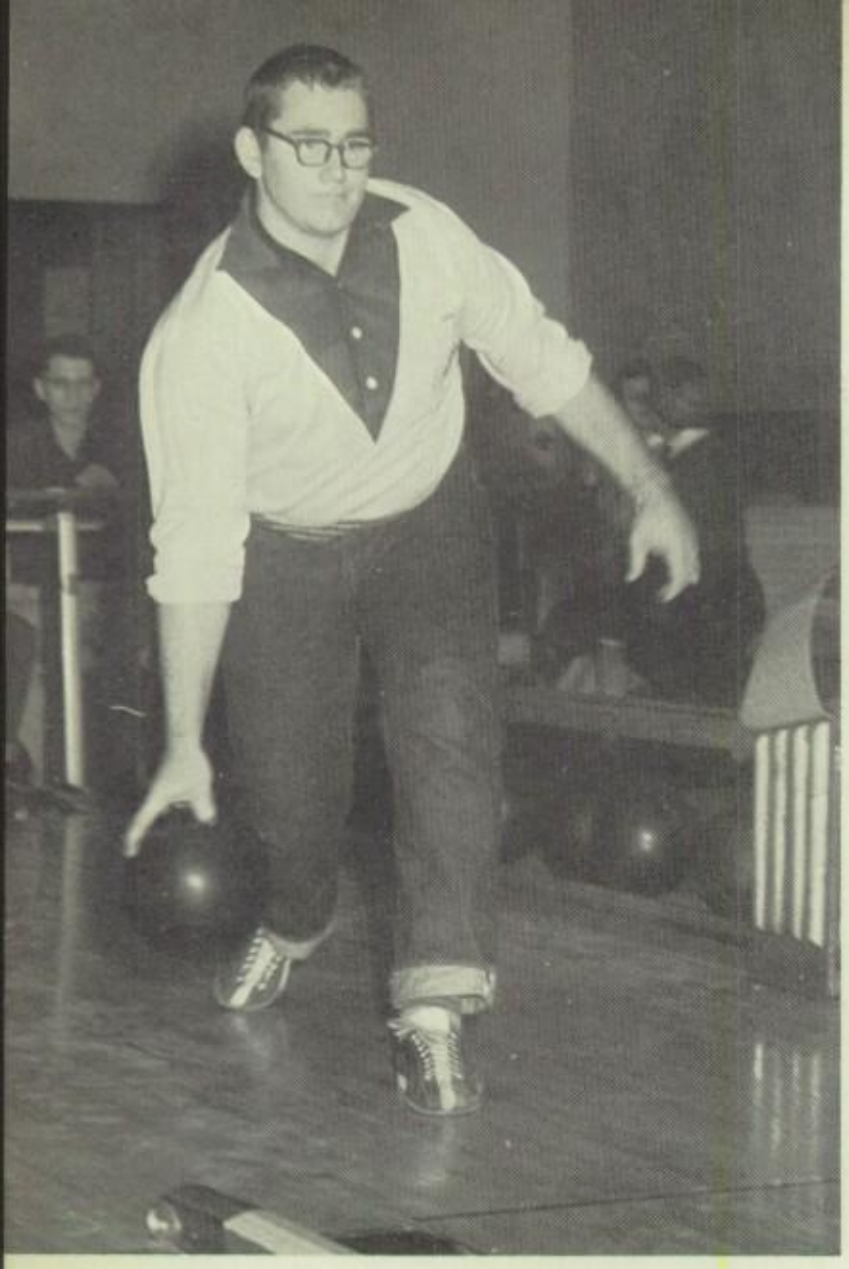
BASEBALL

In spring a young man's fancy turns to . . . . . baseball, the national pastime. Running shoes are traded in for baseball cleats in early May, as the Bulldog diamondmen invade the sports scene.

Baseball's popularity has constantly increased since its reintroduction at Holmes in 1947, but since other northern Kentucky schools do not share our enthusiasm, our schedule is yet rather limited.



Mike Conley make a shoe-string catch.



Ace bowler Tom Means exhibits the delivery which earned him top average in the Boys' Bowling League.

Every Wednesday after school girls rush downtown to Mergard's Bowling Lanes and there they stay for two hours trying hard to bring up their averages. Fourteen teams are engaged weekly with a senior girl serving as captain and Miss Pehrson sponsoring the club. Captains for this year were Barbara Stephenson, Kathleen Barton, Pat Garrard, Martha Hendricks, Barbara Bishop, Bonnie Aylor, Joyce St. John, Frances Donovan, Betty Mueller, Barbara Glindmeyer, Helen Schatzman, Geraldine Wilson, Ruth Klaber, and Barbara Waters. The end of bowling season is marked by an annual banquet where new officers are elected and awards are given.

Boys' teams bowl every Tuesday at Mergard's. With the help of Mr. Simons, the sponsor, the club has finally caught up with the girls' league, and now boasts fourteen teams. Captains for this year were Robert Taylor, John Turner, Bob Smith, Ralph Jump, Tom Means, Gene Cockran, Don Spaulding, Joe Craig, Gordon Colvin, Tom Mason, Jim Shumate, Tom Sheppard, Fred Lyons, and Jack Armstrong.

BOWLING

Girl bowlers are (kneeling) V. Hobbs, R. Childress D. Yelton, J. Baker, J. St. John, P. Stitts, M. Hendricks, M. Furlong, F. Donovan, D. Baker, G. Wilson, P. Garrard; (standing) G. Brown, P. Sammons, R. Klaber, L. Coker, C. Donnelly, R. Aldridge, M. Shadoan, B. Aylor, K. Barton, H. Schatzman, B. Spencer, C. Cooper, L. Crisler, B. Waters, and B. Mueller.

Getting a few pointers from an old master, "Doc" Baulch, coach of the Holmes golf team, are golfers David Conrad, Bill Stenken, and Ronnie Conrad.

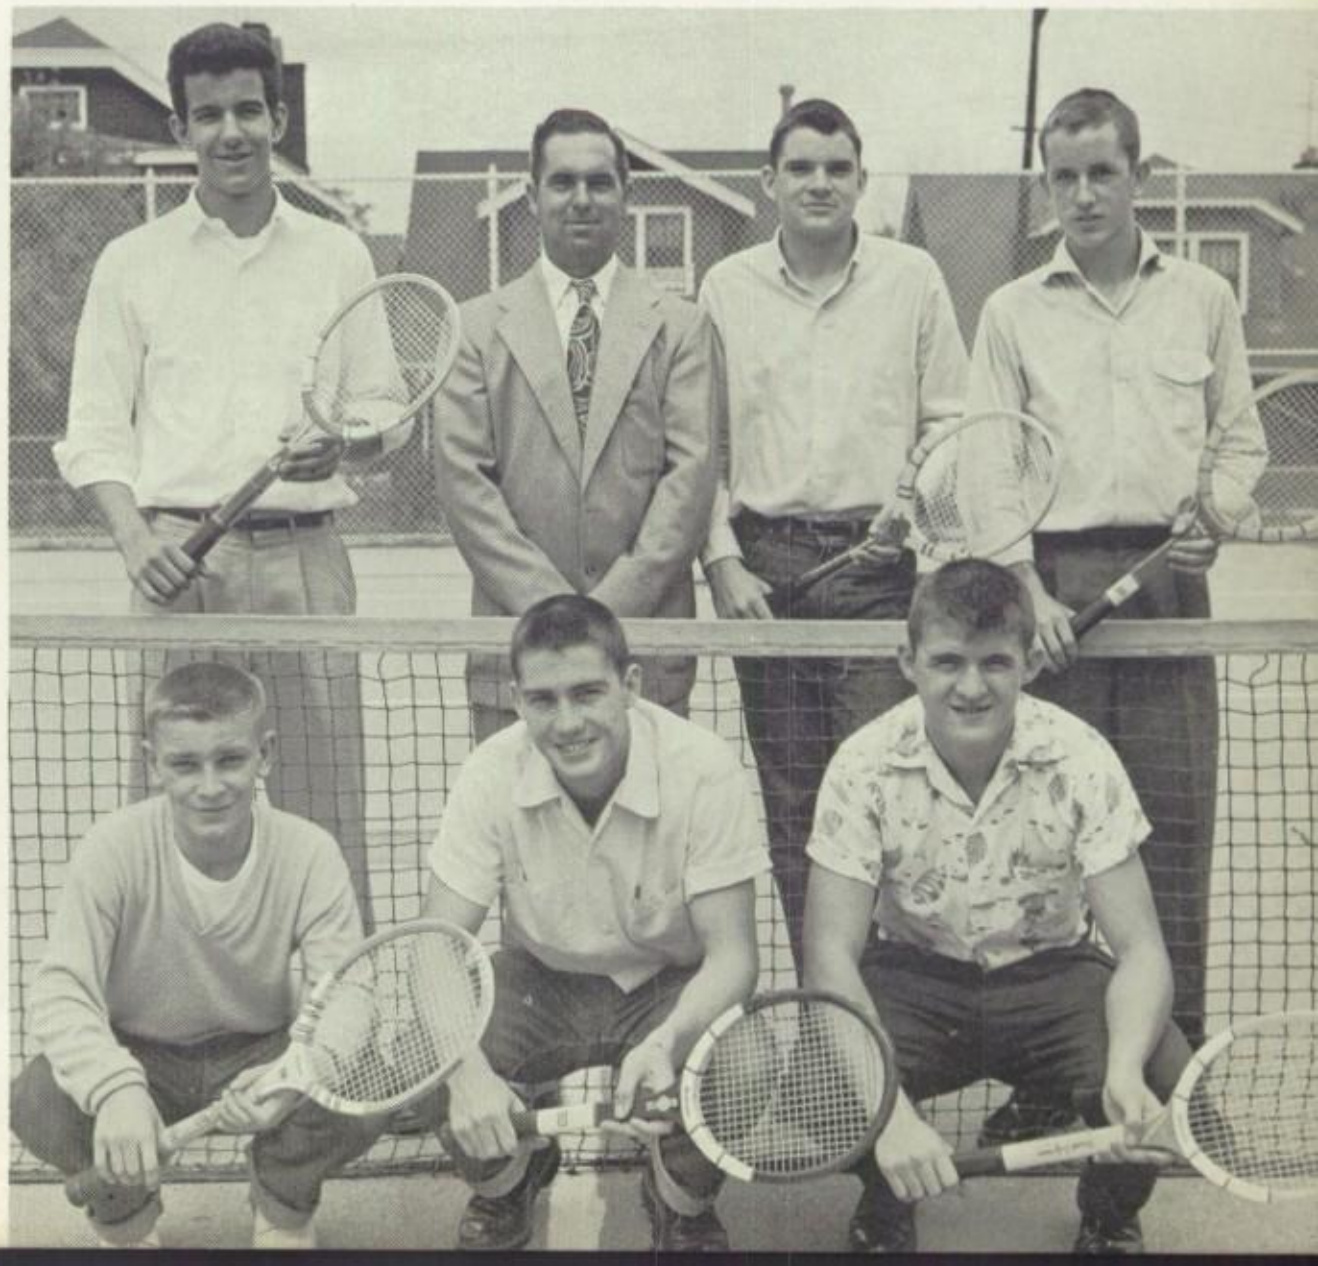
GOLF

Golf and Tennis round out the curriculum of boys' sports at Holmes.

Since few other schools in this area engage in these sports, the Holmesmen play chiefly teams from the Cincinnati area.

TENNIS

Kneeling: L. Roth, M. Johnson and H. Landon. Standing: G. Erion, Coach H. Dupin, J. Jones, and B. Shelby.



GIRLS' ATHLETICS

Developing ideals for sportsmanship and fair play in girls at Holmes is the goal of the comprehensive girls' sports program.

In addition to gym classes, GAA meets twice weekly in the girls' gym and offers ping-pong, badminton, shuffleboard, archery, basketball, and volleyball.

The Swimming Club, open to senior department girls, meets once a week at the Y.

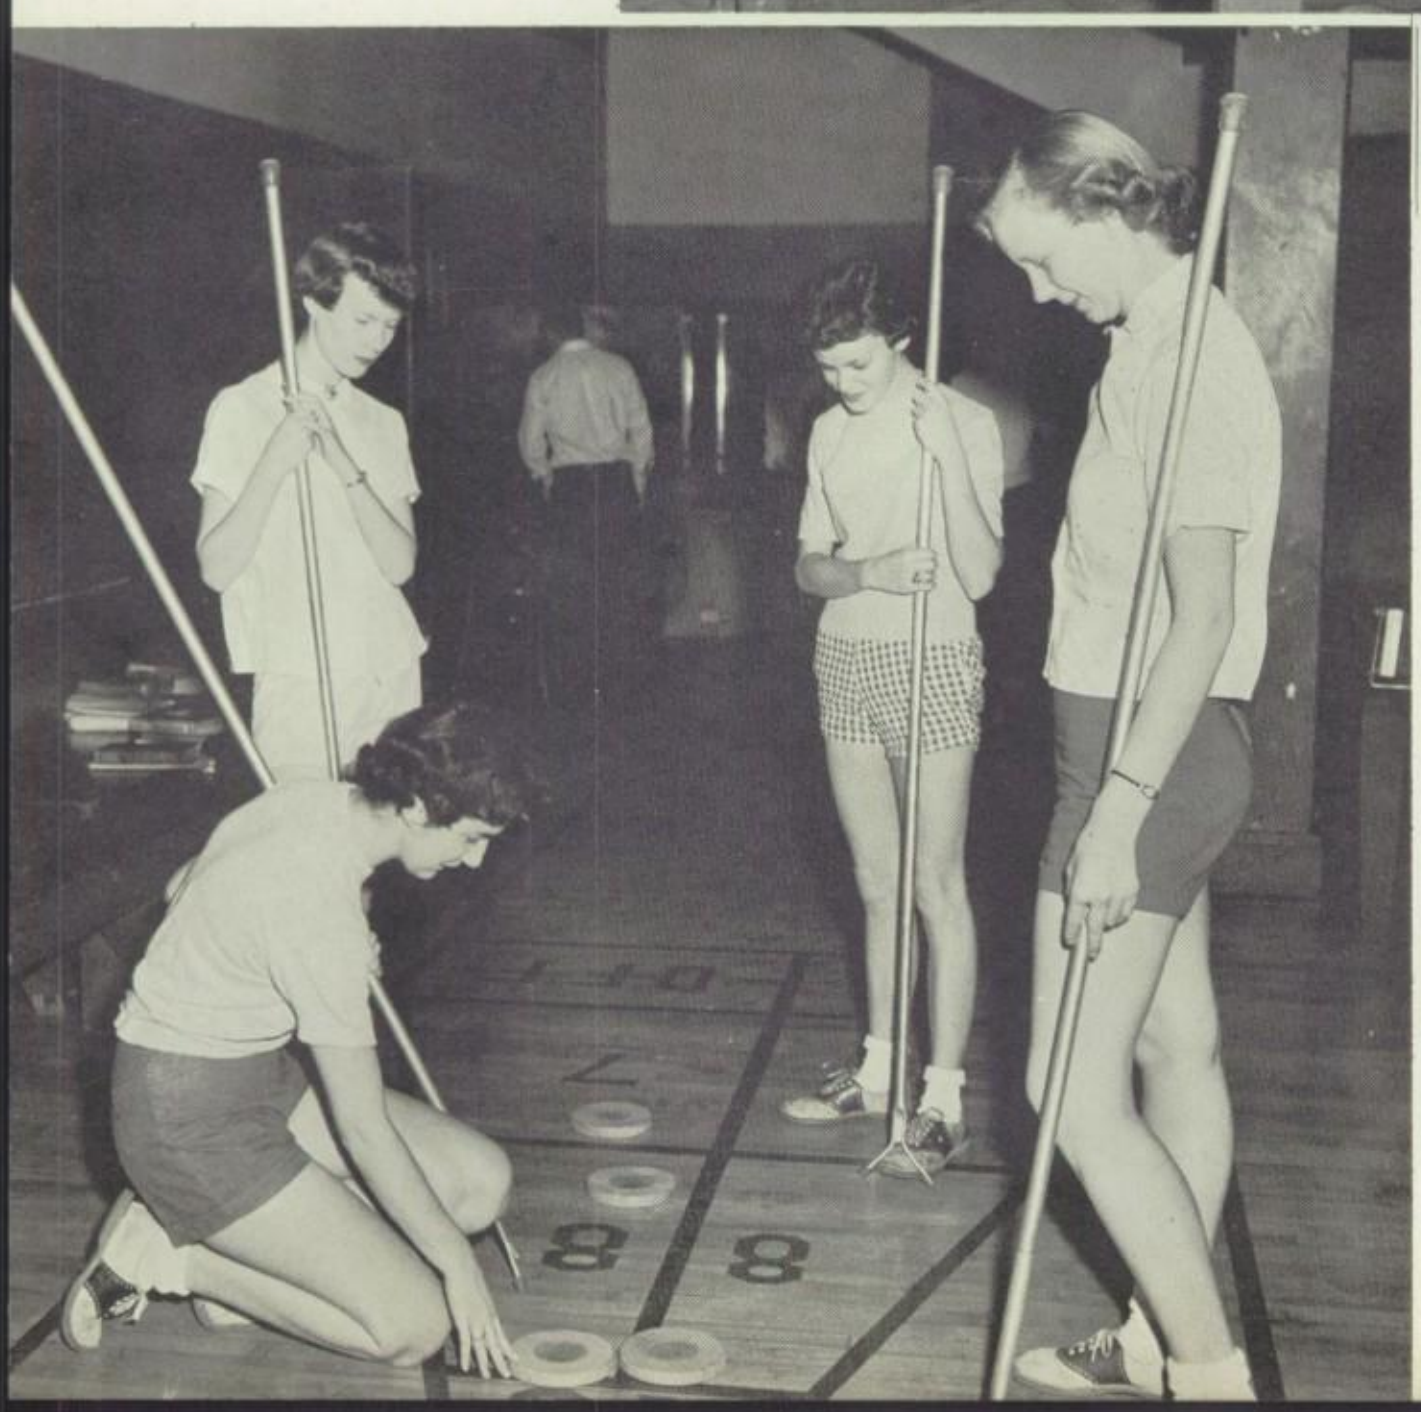
Pat Gabbard looks on as Jonnie and Venita Gilbert play a fast game of ping-pong during a GAA meeting.



Alice Mistler tries to decide whether she and Lillian Goode will capture the extra 10 points from Dorothy Scroggins and Margaret Madden in a friendly game of shuffleboard.

INTEREST AND RECOGNIZE TALENT

Our Prom King & Queen

Seated on their newly acquired thrones are 1955 Junior Prom King George Connley and Queen Carol Keiley being crowned by 1954 Prom King Rodney Bagby and Queen Shirley Goode. Prom attendants (left to right) are Mike Johnson, DeWaine Jones, Carl Leistner, Jack Lower, Harold Skinner, Pat Gabbard, Barbara Bishop, Glenda Brown, Jo Ann Elliott, and Linda Henricksen.

'Neath a glittering golden '55 floating on a stream of navy velvet trimmed with a flowing gold drape, George Connley and Carol Keiley were crowned King and Queen of the Junior Prom by 1954's royalty, Rodney Bagby and Shirley Goode, in the Junior gym, Friday, April 30, 1954.

Glittering fish net with dangling miniature anchors, a navy crepe ceiling, the ship captain flashing a beacon, a mural of a city viewed from port holes, a golden eagle proudly holding two American flags, a white gang-plank, and tiny navy ships carrying white carnations as favors created the atmosphere of cruising on the S.S. Holmes for a Moonlight Dance.

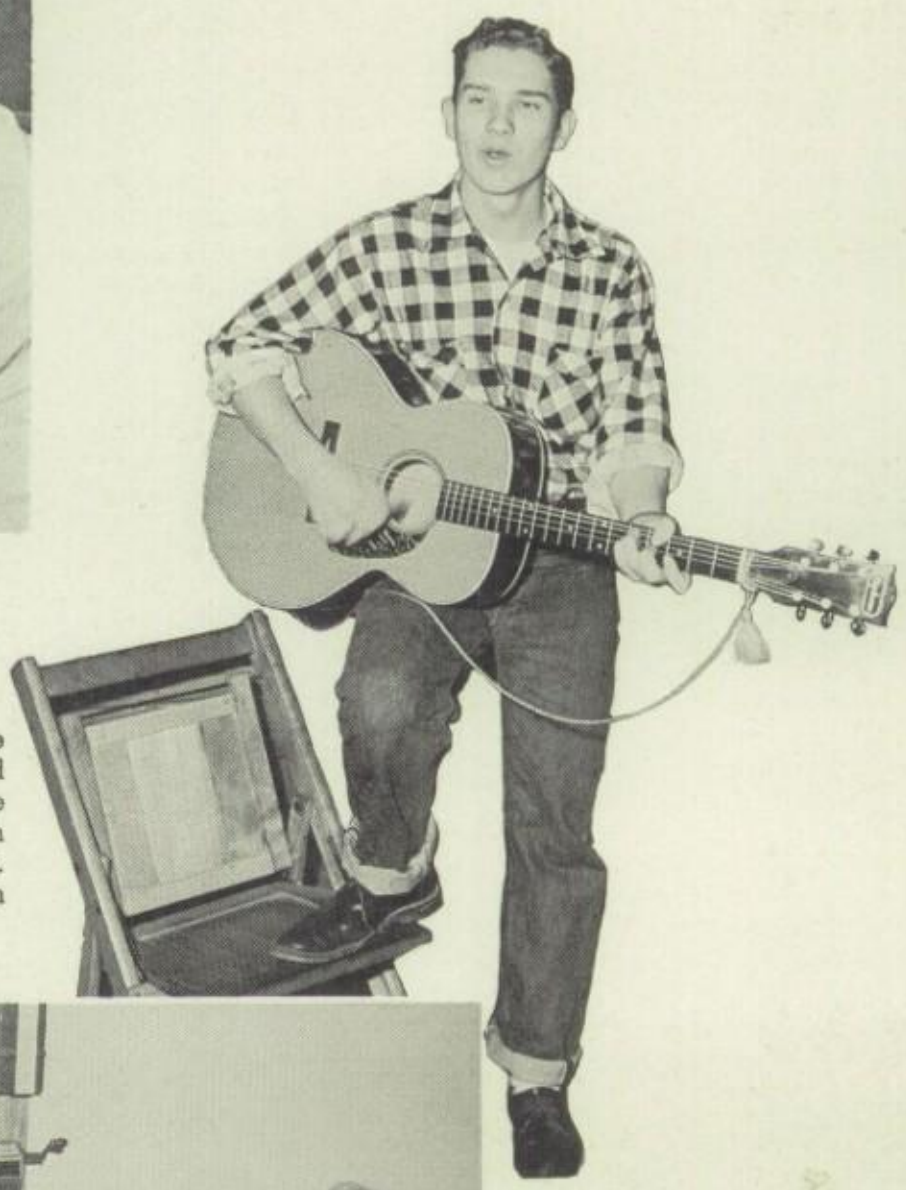
Our Variety Show

Getting acts together, figuring out the scenery, and planning the whole "Show Boat" were the duties of the Variety Show Committee. Their hard work was the spark plug of the entire show, and much of the success of the program was due to them. Caught at a moment of deep thought are (left to right) Dewey Sanders, Carolyn Davis, and Bernard Meese.



Vocal acts of the Variety Show were highlights of the production. Good harmony created a true feeling of the old South throughout the performance. Tuning up to "Here Comes The Showboat" are the entr'actes (left to right) Nancy Wilson, Ruth Childress, Pat Gabbard, Melba Kellam, and Jo Ann Elliott. Seated at the piano are Glenda Hodges, accompanist, and Marilyn Lucas.

Jack Laycock picks out a few tunes on his guitar as he sings a melody in his own cowboy fashion.

Even though the show may have looked as if the scenes were easily enacted, the backstage crew as well as the performers spent many hours in practice as shown by (left to right) Don Crowe, Jesse Bowlin, John Kruse, Rose Lay, and Barbara Stephenson.

Practice and more practice makes any show a success, and that is exactly what seniors did any spare moment they had from January right up to curtain-time. Dance routines, vocal numbers, comedians, and all the other acts were rehearsed before school, during school, after school, and even at home. Mildred Abney, accompanied by Mr. Levi, goes through her dance number.

Our Football King & Queen

Carl Leistner and Pat Gabbard

"Some Enchanted Evening" turned out to be quite a wet one, but the Holmes Football King and Queen for the season of 1954 were crowned. During the halftime of the Highlands game, through a drizzling rain, "Holmespun" Sports Editor Connie Abbott, assisted by Editor Carolyn Davis, presented King Carl Leistner with a gift certificate and Queen Pat Gabbard with a box of candy and a bouquet of roses. The event is sponsored annually by the school paper. Although the muddy field prevented the band from performing its planned routine, the royal couple were serenaded, and to them the evening proved to be truly "Enchanted."

After a hard fought game, players and fans alike scramble to the Y to gossip over a coke, to dance occasionally, and to compare our scores with those of other NKAC teams as shown on the chart hanging prominently in the luncheonette. Discussing Holmes' chances in the NKAC race are (left to right) Don Marinelli, Mike Johnson, Danny Glenn, Lowell Wood, Charles Frazier, Jerry Lancaster, and Joe McAnally.

DRAMATICS

Entertainment for the school, self-expression, and self-development for its members are the aims of the Dramatic Department of Holmes. Two main productions, one in December and the class play in June, as well as several assembly programs, are annual events of the Flats and Cues, the dramatic club. Tryouts for the various parts are held under the watchful eye of Mr. Poston, dramatics coach. Members of the club who aren't lucky enough to have their names in "lights" work behind the curtains on make-up, scenery, publicity, and finances.

"Dracula," the vampire play, was presented to the public on Thursday night, December 9, 1954. The fabulous arrivals and disappearances of Dracula kept the entire audience spellbound. Danny Glenn as Dracula, Bobbie Robinson as Lucy Seward, Paul Kramer as Abraham Van Helsing, and Robert Ante as R. M. Renfield were the stars of the production. Cast in supporting roles were Bernard Meese as Dr. Seward, Nelson Ball as Jonathan Harker, Virgil Clegg as Butterworth, and Judy Onkst as Miss Wells. (Below left) Bobbie Robinson is being bewitched by Danny Glenn.

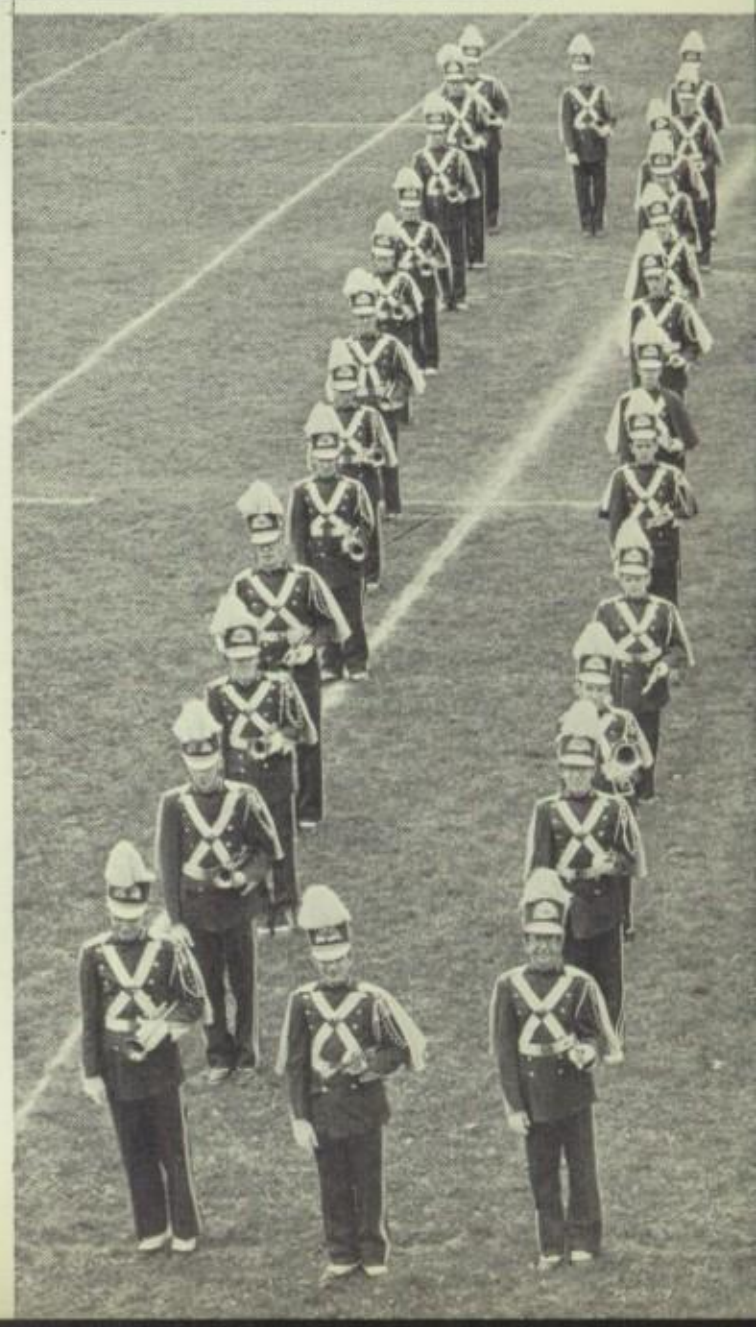
Reserved seats on the fifty-yard line at all home football games rightfully belong to the Holmes Marching Band. Led by a drum major and ten majorettes, it is unique in that it is an all-boy musical aggregation.

To make a more successful grid season, the band faithfully backs the cheerleaders at the games and pep rallies, plays the national anthem at the flag raising, and provides clever halftime entertainment.

Striking feature of this year's routines was "The Glow Worm," with lights on caps twinkling in the darkened shadows.

The majorettes have added color to our pep song "Let's Join Our Hands" by twirling red and white flagged batons. "The Trumpet Cheer," a dialogue between the cheerleaders and the band, shows that the can play modern jazz as well as rousing marches.



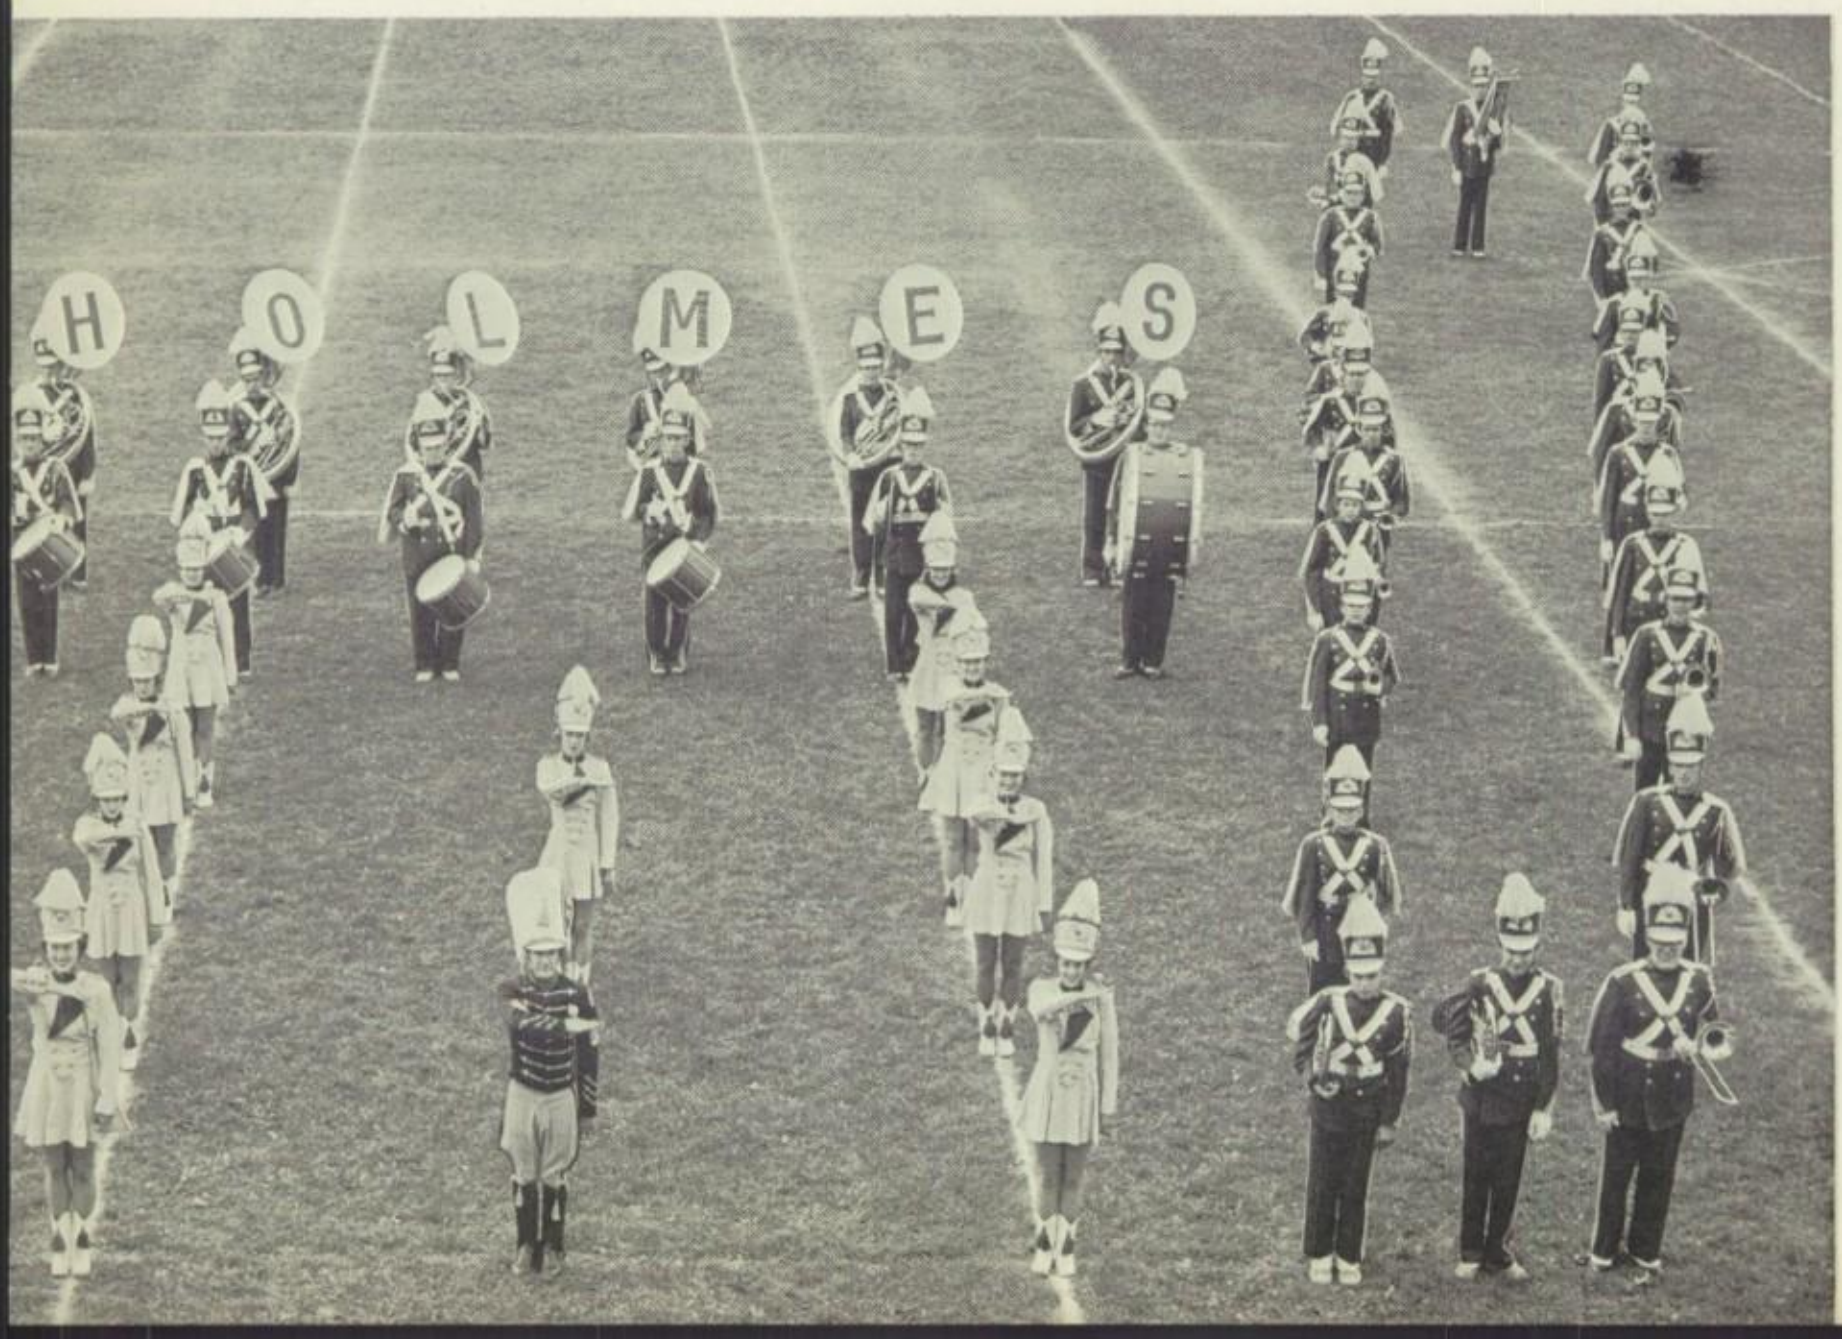
BAND

At the close of the football season, the Marching Band takes on a few girls and becomes the Holmes Concert Band, one of the largest in Greater Cincinnati.

Acoustics in the band room are strained every seventh period as the band practices under the watchful eyes and waving baton of Mr. Levi. One Sunday afternoon in January is set aside for a concert, when varied music from Mozart to mambo is performed. Usually held here in the spring, the district Music Clinic rates and offers suggestions to the northern Kentucky high school bands, choruses, and choirs.

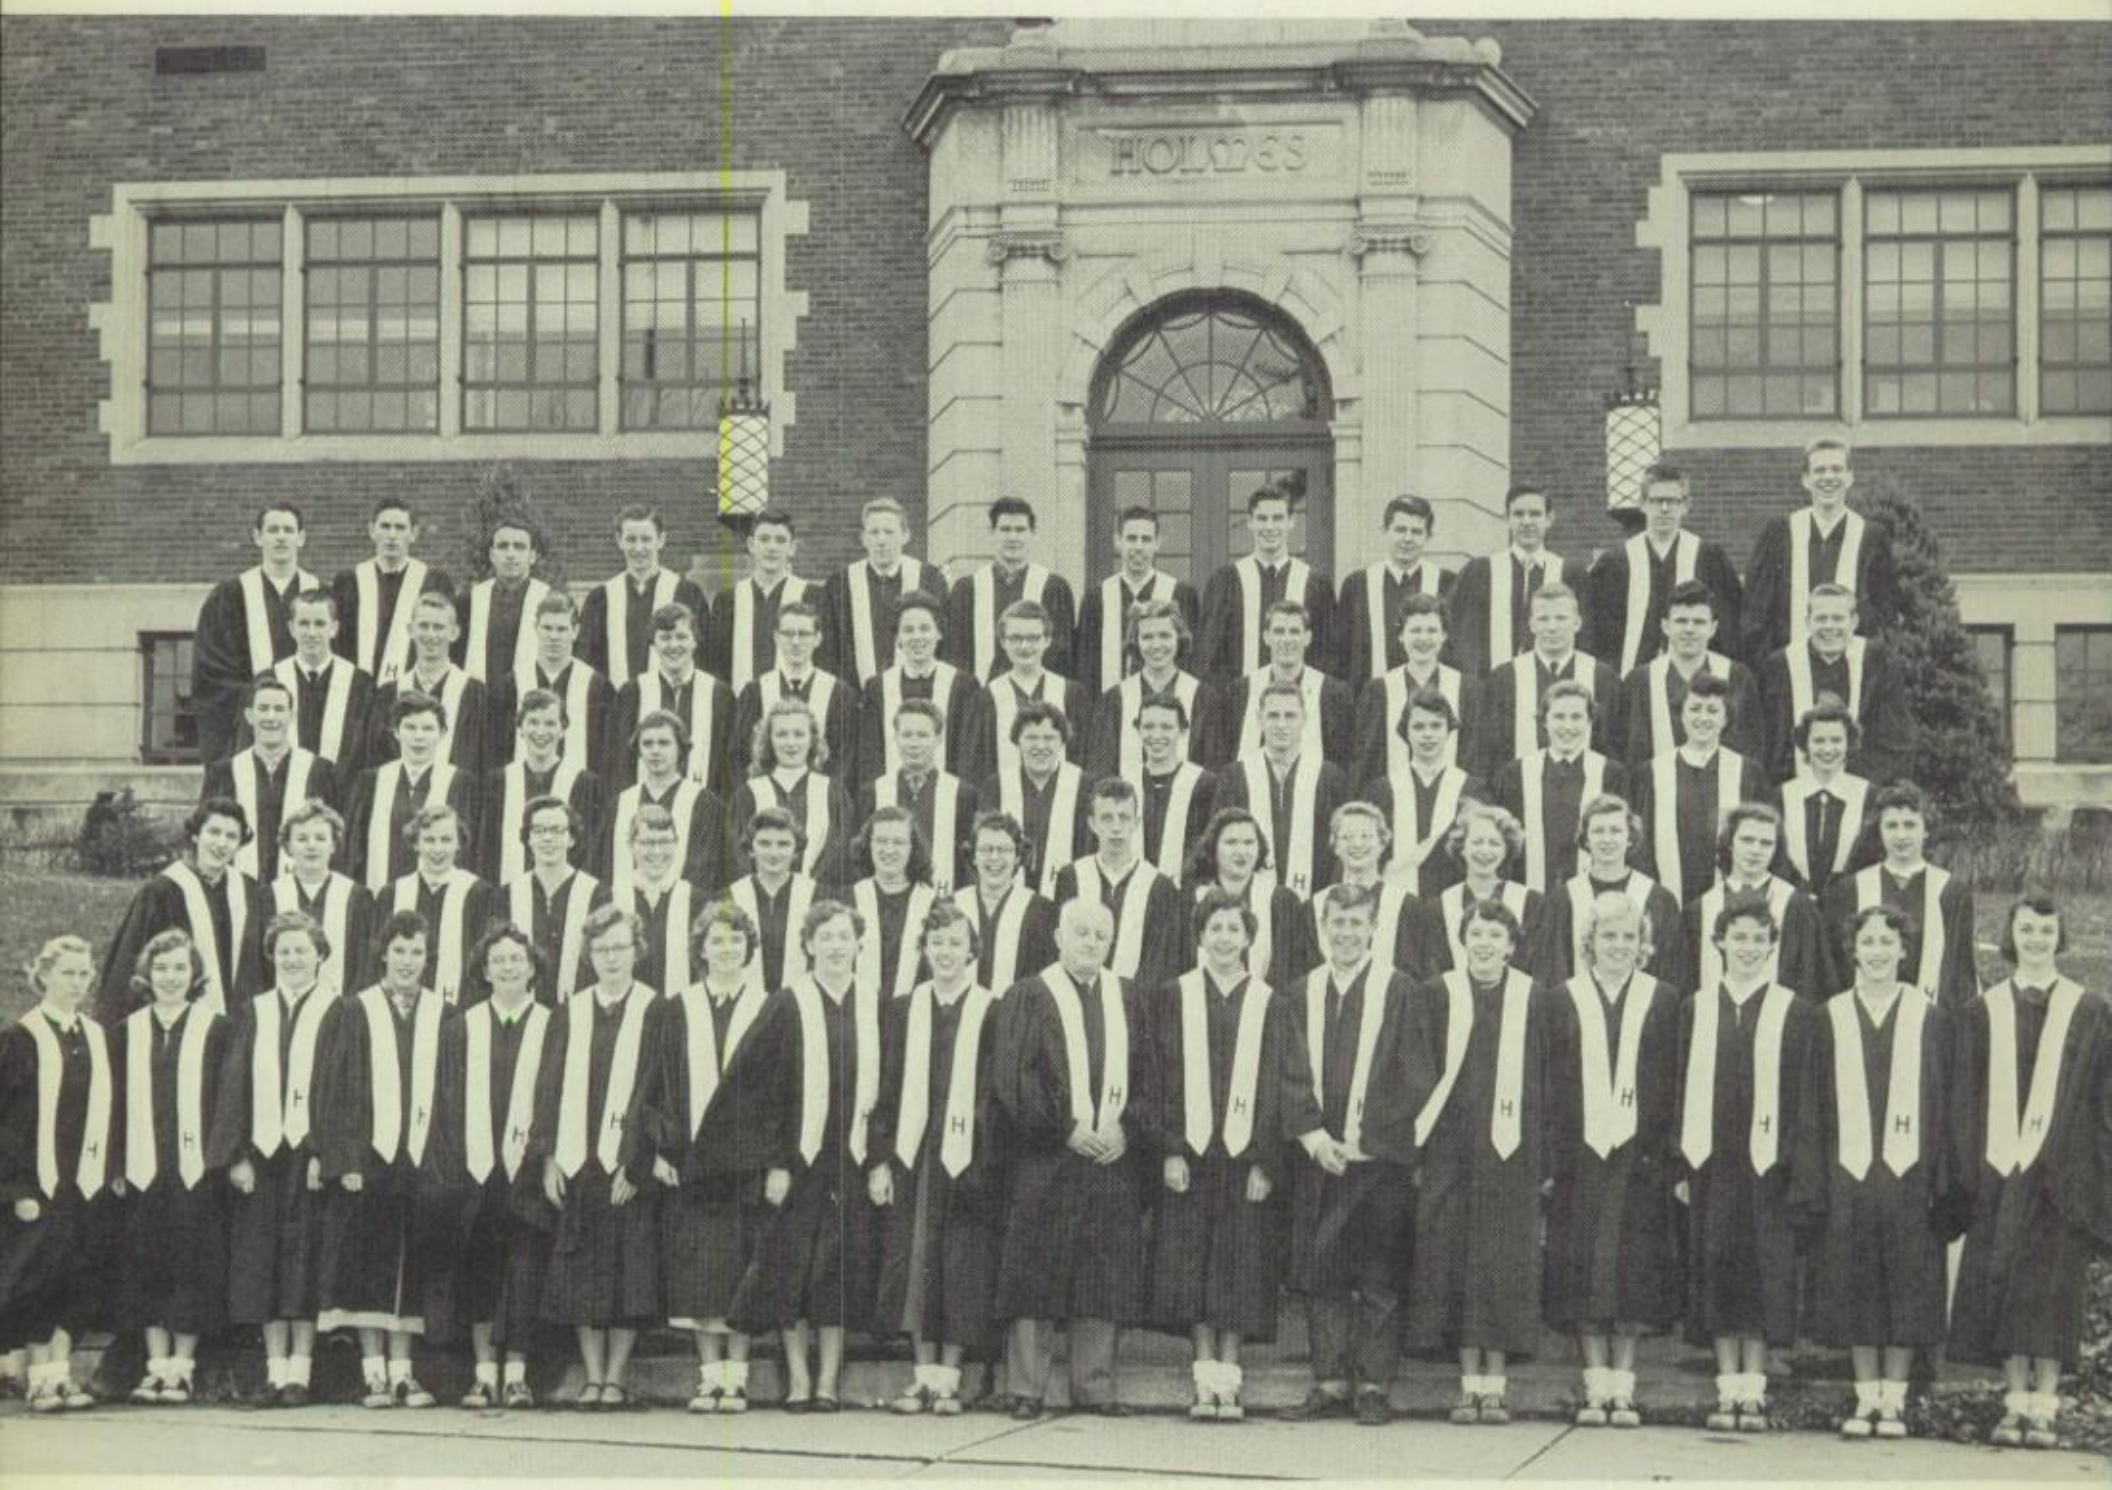
Always willing to assist in other assemblies, the band steps into the spotlight during one program a year.

Any fair fall morning or during the seventh period, Mr. Levi, band director, can be heard shouting directions through a megaphone to the band.



A CAPELLA CHOIR

Seventy-eight voices blended together under the direction of Mr. Schmidt make up the A Cappella Choir of Holmes. Monday, Wednesday, or Friday during third period their songs echo through the first floor of the junior building as they rehearse for their various programs. The real meaning of Christmas and Easter is brought to Holmes students through the assembly programs given by the Choir garbed in their maroon robes and white stoles. All the hard practice of the year is climaxed in the singing during Baccalaureate and Commencement exercises every June. During the ten months of school the Choir also sings for various civic clubs and organizations. Last November the Choir joined with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra in presenting to the public for the second year a Neighborhood Family Concert in the Holmes auditorium.



During the warm months art students may be found with chalk, drawing paper, and easel anywhere on the campus. Sketches of the buildings, tennis court, or trees are drawn over and over again by the young artists who believe practice makes perfect.

Mammoth Cave in the fall and New York City in the spring are annual objectives of this club, and members who made either trip will agree that going was fun.

This year the club gave the Thanksgiving assembly.

HOLMESPUN

"The Holmespun"—the eyes and ears of Holmes! Newspaper row, or the third floor Ad., never has a dull moment. During homeroom and first period newshounds pound beats and write copy, editors lose their tempers and prepare for the printer, and (when time and patience permit) Gordon Wade matches wits with Miss Stephans. All happenings here at Holmes and those of interest to its inhabitants are reported by "these mighty men (and women) of the press."

Besides fulfilling their "Holmespun" duty of running 15 issues a year, the staff members open the assemblies of the school year with a program explaining how a newspaper works and also sponsor the election and crowning of the Football King and Queen.

LEST WE FORGET

If you had dropped in 300 Ad. any time from 2:30 to 3:15 you would have found the Annual Staff hard at work preparing the dummy for the 1955 edition of "Lest We Forget." During the picture-taking days, though, we spent the entire day faithfully following the photographer around aiding him in locating and posing the subjects of the pictures and guiding him through the halls of the various buildings. The rest of our time was passed arranging pages, collecting orders, counting money, and writing what seemed like a mountain of copy.

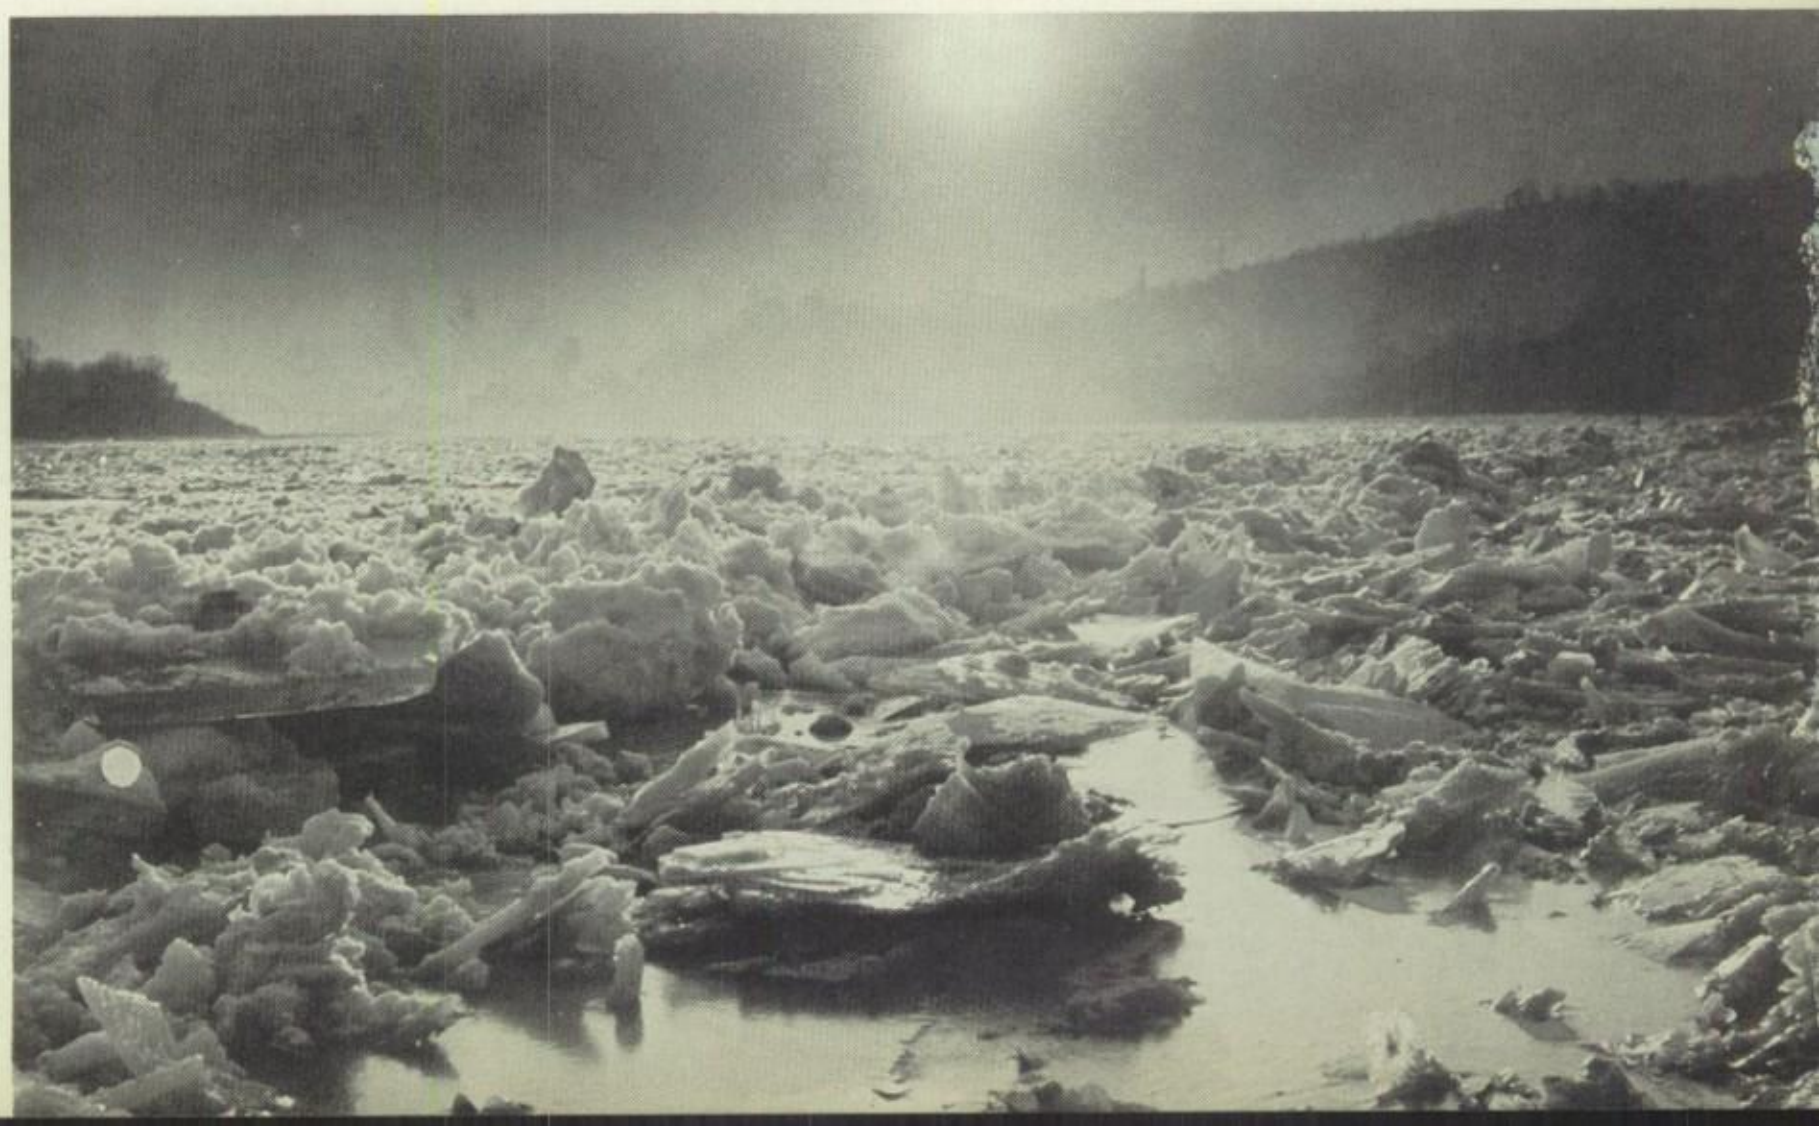
We of the Annual Staff sincerely hope that this memory book fulfills its purpose to everyone who reads it. We enjoyed working together and watching every piece fit into its proper place.

Deeply absorbed in her work of planning our annual is Mary Bramel, editor.

OUR RIVER

The bridge with its new floor poses as it stretches across the river towards Our Town.

Our River, which serves as a highway for transportation throughout most of the year, sometimes in the coldest months of the winter dresses in a fantastic suit of ice and stops the flow of traffic.



OUR TOWN

Our town provides suitable places where we can be educated not only in scholastic and religious fields, but also socially. Swimming pools, bowling alleys, movies, dances, drive-in restaurants, ice cream and chili parlors, tennis courts, ball fields, and golf links are frequented by boys and girls of high school age who like to spend some leisure time with their friends at a favorite "hangout."

Most Holmesites' whereabouts can be found by dropping in High's on the 3L Highway—if they're not there someone knows where they are. The building just bulges with teenagers dancing and sipping cokes as are (front row left to right) Freida Reed, Frank Gammon, Don Spaulding, and Connie Stanton.

"Get that car moving, will you?" A long line of Holmes students has been held up by a Model A Ford which certainly has seen better days. Won't somebody have a heart and give the poor fellow a shove? Who wants to stay around school when all those soda-shops are waiting to be invaded?

OUR SCHOOL

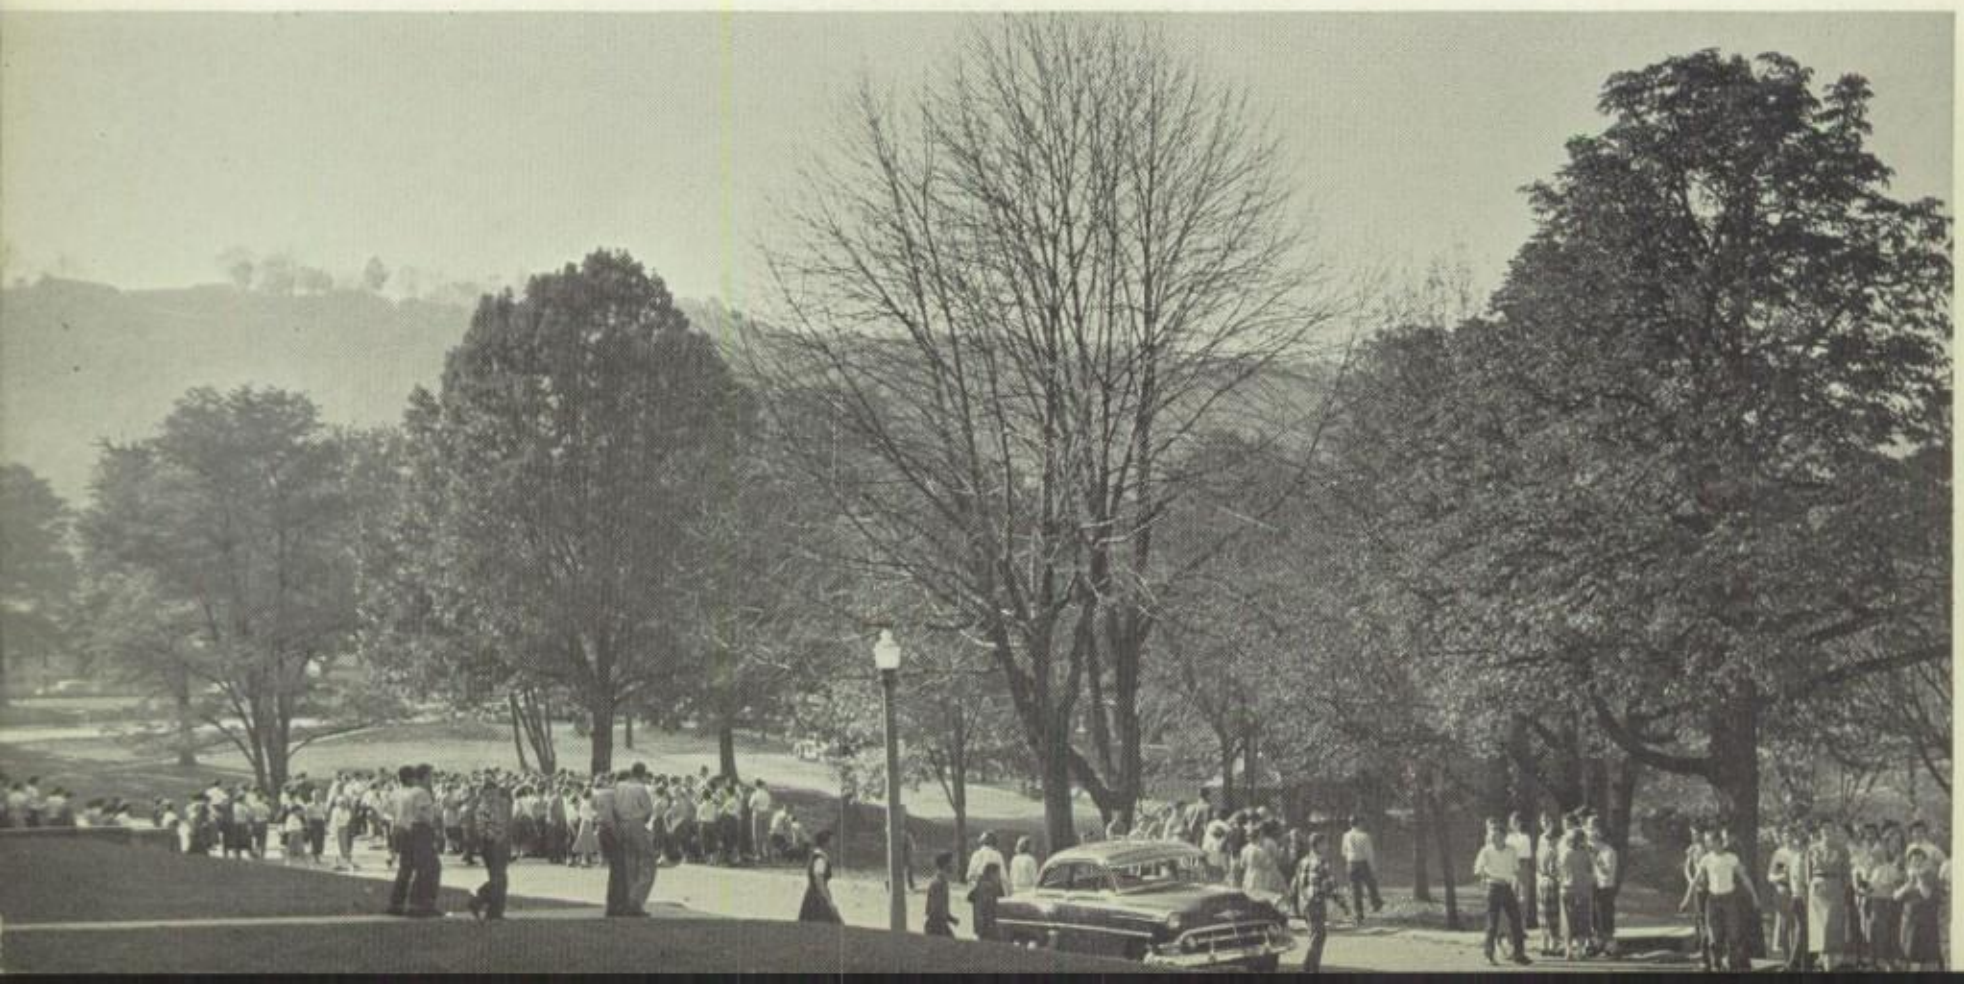
Our School—deep in our affections and high in prestige. Scholastic and athletic standards are unsurpassed in the state. With its gyms, auditorium, cafeteria, libraries, well-equipped science laboratories, Holmes gives us more than enough opportunities to better ourselves.

But these do not make the school. We are the school. What good are high standards if we don't measure up to them? What good is a lot of equipment if we don't use it to the best of our ability? We make our own reputations. When the time comes for us to leave the campus, we will carry a little bit of Holmes with us. Holmes and future Holmesites will be judged by what we do and become.

Bong! Bong! Bong! Bong! Bong! At this warning of a fire drill, all Holmesites leave their books, close classroom doors and windows, and file out the doors onto the lawn to wait for a signal to re-enter. Frequent fire drills assure that if fire came, tragedy would not result.



Many's the heartbreak and joy that has passed from our auditorium stage to the throng of Holmesites seated across the footlights. Plays, speeches, pep rallies, movies, and contests—all have played their part in entertaining, yet educating the audience. On Tuesdays and Thursdays during homeroom the junior and senior departments pour into the auditorium and take assigned seats.

Holmes even attracts celebrities besides the ones it breeds. Speakers' Bureau has sent several pupils to serve as panel members on WCET-TV's "Hi-Lite." George Palmer of WKRC-TV (seated on platform) gives a few hints on TV speaking to (left to right) Barbara Lawson, Robert Ante, Dewey Sanders, and Mr. Poston.
